Welcome to The Guide

Welcome to the BMW Championship / Western Open Records & Statistics Guide for 2019.

This is the 30th edition of a guide compiled, and originally limited in circulation, since 1990, when the WGA's own Western Open Media Guide was confined to a few pages. There are three main sections:

1. A detailed record book, covering the 115 playings of the championship under all its names from 1899 onward. Contents for the following 56 pages are below left.

2. A year-by-year championship history, updated and corrected from the 2018 edition. Details of playing statistics (driving distance, fairways hit, greens in regulation, putts, sand saves) are featured for the last three tournaments. The results for 2016 through 2018 are thus in two-page spreads.

3. An alphabetical register of contestants. Research continues on players from the early days with similar names, with many of the inconsistencies cleared up for this edition.

Since 1990's first edition, focusing on the championship's modern-day Chicago era, interest in golf records and statistics, the Western Open included, has grown. Neglect in keeping any but the most rudimentary records for the Western until it returned to Chicago in 1962, and often for years after, meant the records in this Guide, inspired by Bill Inglish's original Masters Tournament record book, had to be compiled independently.

The records and statistics in this Guide are derived from an exclusive database of over 14,750 player reports, gleaned from an extensive file of contemporary newspaper and magazine reports compiled on trips to 20 cities, from Buffalo to Memphis to Los Angeles. The growth of online newspaper archives has been a boon.

Some records for players with only one round listed in a given year may never be found. Newspapers often printed abbreviated scoring agate on also-rans, notably when the Western attracted over 200 players. Some 3.99 percent of the overall database entries, all from 1908 to 1948, are in that category. The search continues.

Entries from 1949 forward have been crosschecked against the WGA's original reports, along with records from the PGA of America's Tournament Bureau, subsequently the Tournament Players Division, and its successor, the PGA Tour. (Highlights of the PGA Tour's player statistics, originally compiled by Byron Ferguson and now punched into the ShotLink computer system, are included for the past 22 years.)

This is the most complete record of the BMW / Western Open, and perhaps any golf championship.

We invite your thoughts on corrections and improvements to the Guide, and hope you find it useful.

Since 1958, the leader or co-leader has gone on to win 40 of 60 times, 66.67 percent of the time. Data on the 63-hole standings before 1958 is incomplete. *-playoff.

Championship Leaders Round by Round

In the Western Open / BMW Championship, virtually no lead is safe. Since the championship's inception in 1899, only 12 champions have led wire-to-wire. It's only happened four times since 1933, including Jason Day's victory in 2015 and Camilo Villegas' triumph in 2008. Here's the breakdown of who was leading after each round of each Western Open.

Notable Achievements

ELDRICK "TIGER" WOODS, the only player to capture the consecutive Grand Slam as a professional, is the only player to win the Players Championship, Masters, U.S. Open, Western Open, British Open, Western Amateur, PGA Championship, Tour Championship, U.S. Amateur and Canadian Open in a career. He did it all by age 25, when, in March 2001, he won the Players Championship, which some consider the current fifth major. He is the only player to hold the U.S. Amateur, Masters and Western Open titles simultaneously. Woods won the U.S. Amateur in August 1996, the Masters in April 1997 and the Western Open in July 1997. Woods is also the youngest to win the Western Open twice, at ages 21 and 23, and the youngest to hold the Western Open and PGA Championship crowns at the same time (at 23). His 2000 U.S. Open win at Pebble Beach made him the youngest to hold all three simultaneously (at 24), and the first Western Open-U.S. Open-PGA triple champion since Ben Hogan, who won all three in 1948. Woods' 2000 British Open victory allowed him to match Jack Nicklaus as a winner of the four professional majors, the Western Amateur, U.S. Amateur, and Western Open. His Canadian Open win in September 2000 put him 1-up on Nicklaus.

JACK NICKLAUS was the first player to win the Masters, U.S. Open, Western Open, British Open, Western Amateur, PGA Championship and U.S. Amateur in his career. He won all of them (for at least the first time) within an eight-year span beginning in 1959. The Western Open, in 1967, was the final piece of the puzzle. Only Tiger Woods did it more quickly. Nicklaus added the first edition of the then-titled Tournament Players Championship in 1974.

WILLIE ANDERSON was the first player to win the U.S. Open and Western Open in back-to-back years. Anderson won three U.S. Opens in succession from 1903-05 and a pair of Westerns in 1908-09. From 1901 to 1905, he won one Open or the other each year, winning both in 1904. He's first all-time in the Western Open Rankings thanks to four Western Open titles in seven appearances.

BEN HOGAN was the first player to win the Western and two other majors in the same year. In 1948, Hogan captured the PGA Championship in May, the U.S. Open in June and the Western Open from July 29-Aug. 1, many considering it the American Triple Crown. Hogan's victory in the 1946 Western was his first in a major championship.

SAM SNEAD duplicated Hogan's achievement in 1949. He won the Masters in April, the PGA Championship in May and the Western Open in July. Hogan and Snead were the only players to win two other majors and the Western in the same year for more than 40 years.

RALPH GULDAHL is the only player to win both the Western Open and the U.S. Open back-to-back in the same years. Guldahl won the Western three straight years - the only player to do so - beginning in 1936, and also annexed the 1937 and 1938 U.S. Opens. His prize money in those five championships: $3,750, with $1,750 for the three Westerns and $2,000 for the two U.S. Opens. His 1938 wins came five days apart, the U.S. Open on Saturday, June 11 and the Western Open on Thursday, June 16. That's the shortest time span between wins in significant championships in golf history. Guldahl also won the 1939 Masters, giving him six wins in 11 majors, including three in four starts.

BILLY CASPER is the last player to win the U.S. Open and Western Open in consecutive weeks. He did it in 1966, capturing the National Open at Olympic Club in the famous playoff with Arnold Palmer, then won by three strokes six days later on Medinah's No. 3 course. Four other players managed back-to-back USGA Open-WGA Open double championships previously: Willie Smith (1899), Willie Anderson (1904), Alex Smith (1906) and, as detailed above, Ralph Guldahl (1938). The Western and U.S. Opens have been played on adjacent weeks on 22 occasions, including 1990, when Western winner Wayne Levi didn't play at Medinah and U.S. Open champion Hale Irwin didn't tee off at Butler National. In 1998, Lee Janzen won the U.S. Open at Olympic but failed to double in the Western at Cog Hill.

AL GEIBERGER put the most time between winning a major and winning the Western. He captured the 1966 PGA at Firestone, and didn't win the Western until a decade later at Butler National.

NICK PRICE is the only player to win the Western Open, British Open and PGA Championship in the same year. He matched the efforts of Hogan and Snead in winning the Western and two majors in the same year in 1994.

Johnson dominates en route to second BMW title

By Tim Cronin
Reporting from Carmel, Indiana

Bulldozing the field doesn't make for dramatic golf. That depends on birdies and bogeys being bounced back and forth among the leaders on a Sunday afternoon.

When the leader yields bogeys early, then goes on a birdie binge, the drama cannot be manufactured.

It is instead replaced by awe. That's the only way to watch Dustin Johnson these days. The big hitter won the U.S. Open in June by overpowering Oakmont and outlasting the United States Golf Association's rulesmakers. He captured the big payday at Firestone, another big hitter's layout, in his next start.

On Sun., Sept. 11, his final round 5-under-par 67 at Crooked Stick Golf Club allowed him a three-stroke victory over Paul Casey in the BMW Championship. His total of 265 wasn't a tournament record – and the numbers go back to the first Western Open in 1899 all the way to this 113th edition – but his score in relation to par, a gaudy 23 under, is.

He was 15-under on the par-5s, the best known number by a winner. He's won the old championship twice in the last seven playings, including his one-stroke victory over Casey on Cog Hill's Dubsdread course in 2010.

The numbers tell the story. Johnson used a combination of power (first in driving distance this week, averaging 308.6 yards), accuracy (hitting 52 greens in regulation), and, having selected a new putter, precise putting (only 103 putts during the week, fewest by a Western Open / BMW winner since at least 2003, and only two three-putt greens, both on Sunday). What's not to like?

"I've got a lot of confidence," he said on the 18th green after a tap-in wrapped up his $1.53 million triumph. "This week, the putter really worked."

Everything worked. Johnson was two strokes off leader Roberto Castro after 18 holes, tied with him through 36, and led Casey by three entering the final round.

Johnson led by four after a birdie at the first. A few minutes later, it looked like a battle, as Johnson bogeyed the second and third and Casey birdied them. It appeared that Casey, who lost a three-stroke last Monday at the Deutsche Bank Championship, had a chance at his first PGA Tour win in seven years. But Johnson birdied four of the next five holes and began the runaway, cheered on by the gallery of about 28,000 on a sunny day.

It was sealed at the par-5 15th, which he eagled for the second time in three days moments after Casey did so. Johnson's opponent had thrown his best punch and the big guy never felt it.

"That was the turning point," Johnson said.

The duo parred in and Casey matched Johnson's 67, as did Castro, who finished at 17-under 271, which would have won eight of the last 12 Western / BMWs. Instead, it got him third place, and five strokes ahead of the quintet of Ryan Palmer, Adam Scott, Matt Kuchar, J.B. Holmes and Charl Schwartzel in fourth.

Schwartzel's bogey-free 8-under 64 was the round of the day on the third straight day of lift, clean and place in fairways and closely-mown areas, one reason the scoreboard glowed red.

Johnson likely would have won no matter what the rules. The wedge game that he worked so hard over the winter on is the key to his big year.

"I know if I'm driving it well and hitting it in the fairway and get a wedge in my hand I'm going to have good looks at birdies," Johnson said. "Today I hit a lot of great wedge shots. It started on the first hole."

His 122-yard sand wedge stopped 4 feet 7 inches from the cup. He sank 21 and 7 footers on the fourth and fifth holes, dropped a 120-yard wedge 4 feet from the hole on the seventh, and sank a 5-footer for birdie on the eighth. He was 21-under with 10 holes to play.

Casey would have been excused if he had melted away, but he hung in there, to no avail.

Leishman blows away field, scoring records at Conway Farms

By Tim Cronin

Reporting from Lake Forest

Vindication.

Marc Leishman earned that along with the title of BMW Championship winner on Sun., Sept, 17.

Thirteen days earlier, Leishman blew up on the back nine of TPC Boston, allowing Justin Thomas to pass him and win the second tournament in the PGA Tour's playoff series.

He'd won tournaments on six tours – including the Travelers in 2012 and the Arnold Palmer Invitational earlier this year – but Leishman, for better or worse, was better known for dropping a playoff to Zach Johnson in the British Open at St. Andrews and finishing tied for fourth in the 2013 Masters, where he flirted with trying on a green jacket on the back nine.

It was more like a strait jacket.

This one, he would not lose.

This one, Leishman won going away, scoring a Western Open / BMW record 261 with a final-round 67 at Conway Farms Golf Club, shoving the record aggregates of Tiger Woods (2007) and Jason Day (2015) aside. His 23-under-par mark in the lowest-scoring Western / BMW in its 114-tournament history also matched the record for under-par set by Dustin Johnson at Crooked Stick Golf Club last year, when Johnson shot 265 on the par-72 course near Indianapolis.

Leishman beat Justin Rose and Rickie Fowler by five strokes in his wire-to-wire triumph. Rose scored 6-under 65 for his 18-under total of 266, while Fowler, the epitome of hot and cold all week, posted a 67. Twice, Rose closed the gap to two strokes, but with Leishman playing nearly flawless golf – he had two final-round bogeys and six for the week to go with 29 birdies – either Rose or Fowler would have needed to shoot 61 to force extra holes.

"I had a big enough buffer to get it done, and I got it done," Leishman said.

Over the years, the big 33-year-old Australian had built an underdog's resume. He'd even finished tied for second with Jim Furyk in the 2009 BMW at Cog Hill. Nobody remembers because they finished eight strokes behind Tiger Woods.

That was typical for Leishman. Even at Bay Hill this year, the story wasn't so much that Leishman won but that Arnold Palmer wasn't there to shake his hand at the 72nd green.

Leishman was the big bearded guy who was also known more for the brush with death his wife Audrey endured a little over two years ago. Completely recovered, they've had a third child and devote time to the Begin Again Foundation, which raises and directs funds toward sepsis awareness. It has aided more than 700 families in the last 18 months.

Boston, though – finishing with a 40 and a shank between the legs of an NBC cameraman – grated.

"After what I did at the Dell (at TPC Boston), there's determination to finish this one off, and my game is in a better spot," he said before the final round. "I always tell my wife, if I have a bad round, give me 10 minutes. That one probably took a day."

And added to the anonymity.

"I kind of like that I can go wherever I want and no one knows who I am, and that's pretty cool," Leishman added. "I've been out for dinner with Rickie and Jas (Jason Day) and a lot of the guys, Scotty (Adam Scott), and everyone knows who they are.

"That will probably change, but I need to start lifting more trophies."

Consider it done.

Winning at Conway Farms not only gave him unparalleled momentum entering the Tour Championship, it moved him to fourth in the playoff race and thus assured him of the FedEx Cup title and $10 million pot o'gold if he wins at East Lake Golf Club, as Billy Horschel did in 2014. (Standings leader Jordan Spieth and the others in the top five, Thomas, Dustin Johnson and Jon Rahm, also can do so.)

The difference between Labor Day near Boston and Sunday in Lake Forest was simple: This time, Leishman hit the shots where he wanted to and made key birdie putts down the stretch. A snake of a 28-footer on the par-4 15th followed by a 10-footer on the par-4 16th to go to 22-under, extending his lead over Rose to three strokes, elicited fist pumps from the usually placid Australian, especially on No. 16.

"I'd say that was a little bigger than the one on 15 because it gave me a four-shot buffer at the time," Leishman said. "You've got to do something drastically wrong to lose a four-shot lead with two to play."

Bradley over Rose in playoff as Tour scoring average falls

By Tim Cronin
Reporting from Newtown Square, Pennsylvania

Six years removed from his last victory, Keegan Bradley had receded into the memories of many. He'd won a PGA Championship, he had a quirky stutter-step approach to the ball, and he was LPGA legend Pat Bradley's nephew.

As he discarded the long putter when the anchoring bad was implemented, he'd also disappeared from leader boards.

He's back. Scoring a tournament-record 20-under-par 260 brought him back, but he still needed to beat Justin Rose, who nearly always wins when big-time golf comes to Philadelphia.

It took a playoff, but Bradley pulled it off, saving par while Rose bogeyed the first playoff hole at Aronimink Golf Club on Monday, Sept. 10, to capture a rain-soaked and mud-caked BMW Championship, which set a PGA Tour record for scoring average (67.880).

Not bad for someone who went to bed Saturday night knowing he was within the top 30 for Tour Championship qualification thanks to big par putts on the last two holes of his third round, and would stay there if the final round was wiped out.

"It was the weirdest couple of days," Bradley said. "I thought, man, if they call it I'm good, but I'm also glad I'm only three back. Thankfully we got out here and played, and I made it to Atlanta and more now."

Bradley, who finished with his second 6-under 64 of the week, had birdied the 14th, 16th and 17th holes to get to 21-under and the lead, but bogeyed the last with a drive to the muddy left rough and an approach into the luxury suites to the right to fall back to 20-under.

"I played that 18th hole so bad," Bradley said. "A mud ball on my second but a bad putt and the worst drive I hit all week. It left a bad taste in my mouth."

Rose came in at 260 in the following group via a closing 3-under 67. He also bogeyed the last, leaving his second shot well short when his 4-iron was killed by a gust of wind, then failing to save par.

They would play the 18th again, and this time Bradley found the fairway, put his second in the collar 23 feet from the cup, and got up-and-down for his four.

Rose had made all 48 putts inside of five feet in regulation, but in the playoff from 7 feet 8 inches, he found the left edge.

Bradley had no trouble converting from 17 inches for his first victory since 2012 at Firestone, erasing the bad taste. Within seconds, he was lifting wife Jillian and son Logan in the air as high as he'd lift the J.K. Wadley Cup.

"I thought to win and to have my son there, that would be the most incredible feeling," Bradley said. "I'd seen it on TV so much. That was just awesome."

Rose climbed back to No. 1 in the world ranking even with the loss.

"It's a boyhood dream," Rose said of the achievement, which comes without a trophy but with a great deal of pride.

Bradley's ride from PGA champion and a three-time winner, the last time at Firestone in 2012, to the bottom and back up was a difficult one, complicated by changing from the long putter to a conventional one.

"I went back and forth from an arm lock to a short putter, but I didn't get mechanical with the long putter," Bradley said. "When I got my swing to where it is, I was able to really sit down and focus on the fundamentals of putting with an arm putter."

Bradley said watching Webb Simpson adapt similarly helped him immensely.

Two weeks ago at the first playoff tournament at Plainfield Country Club, he was in the final twosome after a third-round 62. He shot 78, and it looked like the Bradley of old was replaced by an old Bradley.

Not so at Aronimink. He was back.

A quick guide to the Register

The Register is self-explanatory, but some abbreviations used are unique to these records. The more obscure especially apply to the Western Open prior to the 1960s:

c: placing in consolation bracket (1910-11).
DNS: did not start following round, but did not withdraw.
DQ: disqualified.
E: received sponsor exemption from WGA (1970-2006).
HP: head professional.
MC: missed cut (36 holes, except for 1987, which was 18 holes).
MC1: missed 36-hole cut (in years where a 54-hole cut applied).
MC2: missed 54-hole cut.
NC: no card (played round, but did not return scorecard).
NR: no record of following round.
Q: qualified on Monday (generally) of Western.
S: qualified through Illinois PGA Section.
T: tied for place.
WD: withdrew.
