

Each of the last three winners of the OHL Classic at Mayakoba have gone on to finish inside the top-35 in the FedExCup standings the year of their Mexico win; Charley Hoffman (2014/10th), Harris English (2013/31st) and John Huh (2012/29th).

If not otherwise exempt, McDowell earns a spot into the following PGA TOUR events in 2016: Hyundai Tournament of Champions, CareerBuilder Challenge, Arnold Palmer Invitational, Masters Tournament, RBC Heritage, PLAYERS Championship, Colonial National Invitation Tournament, the Memorial Tournament, Quicken Loans National and PGA Championship.

McDowell wins in his second start at the OHL Classic at Mayakoba. Playing on a sponsor invitation in the event's first year of 2007, he finished T63.

With his win, McDowell becomes the first international-born winner of the OHL Classic at Mayakoba in its nine-year history.

With his win, McDowell moves to 2-0 in Playoffs on the PGA TOUR. At the 2013 RBC Heritage, he defeated Webb Simpson on the first extra hole.

McDowell's 12-under 130 tied the record for the lowest, first 36-hole score, most recently posted by Michael Putnam last season (66-64).

With his win, McDowell becomes just the second player (of five) in the OHL Classic at Mayakoba to get to 12-under 130 after the first 36 holes and hang on for the win. Harris English first achieved the feat in 2013.

With the win, McDowell becomes the fifth player in tournament history to come from behind in the final round to win. The last 54-hole leader to convert for the win the event was Johnson Wagner in 2011.

By his own admission, the 2014-15 PGA TOUR Season was not what McDowell wanted. His lone top-10 finish in 15 starts was a T3 at the World Golf Championships-HSBC Champions. He had previously collected no fewer than two top-10s in a season since 2009 and amassed as many as eight (2014).

Jason Bohn

Last year's 54-hole leader Jason Bohn made an eagle and three birdies against two bogeys in the Sunday/Monday final round to finish with a 3-under 68 and force his way into sudden death with Graeme McDowell and Russell Knox.

Unable to match McDowell's birdie on the first extra hole, No. 18, Bohn settled for a share of second place with Russell Knox.

Bohn has now collected seven runner-up finishes since his 2010 victory in New Orleans.

This marks the first time for Bohn to have collected three top-10 finishes in as few as four starts.

Bohn was in search of his third career PGA TOUR win this week in his 299th start. He won the 2005 B.C. Open and 2010 Zurich Classic of New Orleans.

Bohn's strength this week in Mexico was clearly on the par-5s. With eight birdies, two eagles and two pars, he played 12 par fives in 12-under-par.

Bohn continues to ride the wave of momentum this season. In addition to this week, Bohn finished T3 at the Frys.com Open and T2 a week later at the Shriners Hospitals for Children Open. He finished T39 last week at the Sanderson Farms Championship.

Bohn ended last season with eight of 10 rounds at par or worse. Through four starts this season, he has posted 15 of 16 scores with par or better. His only over-par score was a 1-over 73 in the final round of last week's Sanderson Farms Championship. Bohn is 55-under-par through those 16 rounds this season.

In his first start at the OHL Classic at Mayakoba, Bohn finished T19 in 2011, but improved to T3 and T7 finishes in 2013-14 and 2014-15, respectively.

Russell Knox

On the heels of last week's World Golf Championships-HSBC Champions victory, his first on the PGA TOUR, Scotland's Russell Knox ran off a string of four consecutive birdies for the second straight day to get to 19-under through 12 holes before play was called for the day Sunday, due to darkness.

Needing a par at No. 18 to win outright Monday morning, Knox made bogey for a 5-under 66 which resulted in sudden death with Jason Bohn and Graeme McDowell. Unable to match McDowell's birdie-3 on the first extra hole, No. 18, Knox settled for a share of second place with Jason Bohn.

With his second-place finish at the OHL Classic at Mayakoba following his win at the World Golf Championships-HSBC Champions, Knox overtook the No. 1 spot in the FedExCup standings. His 876 FedExCup points lead Justin Thomas by 188.

The last player to claim his first two victories in back-to-back starts was Camilo Villegas at the 2008 BMW Championship and TOUR Championship by Coca-Cola. David Duval achieved the feat prior to that in 1997, en route to winning his first three in consecutive starts (1997 Michelob Championship, Walt Disney World Oldsmobile Classic and TOUR Championship by Coca-Cola).

The last player to win in back-to-back events was Billy Horschel at the 2014 BMW Championship and TOUR Championship by Coca-Cola.

The last player to win in back-to-back starts was Jason Day last season at the PGA Championship and The Barclays. Jordan Spieth also won in back-to-back starts last season at the U.S. Open and John Deere Classic.

The last player to win in consecutive starts on two different continents was Rory McIlroy at the 2014 Open Championship and World Golf Championships-Bridgestone Invitational.

Knox was making his fourth start in the OHL Classic at Mayakoba this week; T30/2012, T31/2014 and T37 last season. His only over-round par was a 3-over 74 in round one of 2012.

Derek Fathauer

Derek Fathauer, who held a one-stroke lead after 54 holes, wasn't able to get much going in the final round, making three birdies and three bogeys for an even-par 71. Fathauer finished alone in fourth.

Fathauer's top-5 finish this week is his career-best, supplanting a T10 from the Barracuda Championship last season in the Modified Stableford format.

Miscellaneous Notes

Last week's Sanderson Farms Championship winner Peter Malnati enjoyed another solid week, finishing T10 at 11-under 273.

Hunter Stewart, who graduated from Vanderbilt University last spring and turned professional prior to the Shriners Hospitals for Children Open, finished T10 and is exempt into this week's RSM Classic. However, he is also registered to compete in the second stage of the Web.com Tour Qualifying School at Plantation Preserve Golf Course & Club in Plantation, Fla., Nov. 17-20.

Jon Rahm, the lone amateur in the field, took costly double bogeys on the first two holes, both par-4s, before righting the ship with six birdies to post a final-round 1-under 70 and claim T10 honors at 11-under 273. The Spain native and Arizona State University senior was making his fourth start on the PGA TOUR this week. In the 2014-15 season, he finished T5 at the Waste Management Phoenix Open, T64 at the Travelers Championship and missed the cut at last year's OHL Classic at Mayakoba.

Of the seven past OHL Classic at Mayakoba champions who started this week, Johnson Wagner/2011 (-12/T8), Cameron Beckman/2010 (-9/T25) and Mark Wilson/2009 (-3/T58) made the cut.

Of the five Mexican players who made starts this week, only Rodolfo E. Cazaubon (+1/T74) made the cut.

Last year, Carlos Ortiz and Oscar Fraustro were the only (of seven) Mexican players in the field to make the cut, both finishing T9. Those top-10 finishes were the best by a Mexican player in the history of the event.
