7 AM Weather Forecast

Sunday, April 8, 2018

Synopsis: The clouds will linger through most of this morning with cool temperatures in the 40's and north-northeast winds at 10-15 mph. There will be some breaks in the clouds towards the noon hour, and gradual clearing is expected this afternoon with mostly sunny skies later in the day. Northeast winds will decrease to 5-10 mph this afternoon, and even lighter towards evening. It will be a cool day, but temperatures do warm into the lower to middle 60s with the sunshine later this afternoon. A disturbance brings increasing clouds tonight and scattered showers into Monday morning. The chances for rain decrease into Monday afternoon. With the clouds and showers, temperatures should only make the lower 60's.
