THE ALFRED S. BOURNE TROPHY

In 1937, Alfred Severin Bourne of Washington, Conn., and Augusta, Ga., donated a check for $1,500, for the creation of a trophy and its endowment for the Senior PGA Championship. Bourne was one of the original members of Augusta (Ga.) National Golf Club and a longtime friend of PGA Professionals. Augusta National hosted the first two Senior PGA Championships, in 1937-38. The Bourne Trophy, representing the most prestigious event in senior golf, stands 42 inches high, weighs 36 pounds and is 18 inches wide. The Alfred S. Bourne Trophy, which has been presented to many of the legends of the game, is enshrined at the PGA Gallery at PGA Golf Club in Port St. Lucie, Fla.

which wind through rolling hills, ravines and hardwood forest. The finishing holes 14-18 are placed in a River terrain which border the Paw Paw River, Ox Creek and its wetlands. The result is a golf course unlike any other, allowing you to experience all the different courses you can play in Michigan, all in one course. Amazing terrain. A dramatic design.

The KitchenAid Senior PGA Championship made its first appearance in Michigan in 2012 at Harbor Shores, a proud part of the revitalization of the Benton Harbor and St. Joseph communities, which is quickly becoming one of the premier golf destinations in the Midwest.

"With Harbor Shores, we set out really to change a community," Nicklaus said. "This wasn't just about a golf course. This was a non-profit project. That's the important part of it. When we started, we had a factory where the first tee is. We had to remove toxic waste and buildings. But in the end, the whole course looks beautiful and we hope is enjoyable to play."

Harbor Shores was ranked No. 3 on the 2010 Best New Courses You Can Play list compiled by GOLF Magazine. In describing the course, GOLF Magazine said, "One of the year's feel-good stories is this short but stern Jack Nicklaus Signature design that weaves through hardwoods, marshland and the massive white sand dunes that edge Lake Michigan on holes 7, 8 and 9."

HARBOR SHORES BENTON HARBOR, MICHIGAN

Harbor Shores is the first beach, golf, and residential waterfront community in Michigan's Great Southwest and the only Jack Nicklaus Signature Course on Lake Michigan. Just 90 minutes from Chicago, this 18-hole, public Jack Nicklaus Signature Golf Course reflects the high standards of the world's leading design firm, Nicklaus Design. After successfully hosting the KitchenAid Senior PGA Championship in 2012, 2014 and 2016, Harbor Shores will again play host in 2018, 2020, 2022, and 2024. The course runs over four remarkably diverse terrains that challenge golfers even as it offers a spectacular setting in which to play. The beginning holes, 1-6, are in the Inland terrain. Holes 7, 8, and 9 are in a Dunes terrain with dramatic views of Lake Michigan. Holes 10-13 are in our Woodlands terrains,

SENIOR GOLF'S STORIED MAJOR

The most historic and prestigious major championship in senior golf, the KitchenAid Senior PGA Championship celebrates its 79th edition in 2018. The Championship was born in 1937 on the grounds of another of golf's majors, at the invitation of one of the game's greatest players. At the suggestion of renowned amateur Bobby Jones, the inaugural Senior PGA Championship was played at Augusta (Ga.) National Golf Club three years after the first Masters Tournament was held there. It was established to provide an opportunity to PGA members ages 50 and over to compete with their peers. The purse was $2,000.

In an effort to find better weather conditions, the KitchenAid Senior PGA Championship moved to Florida in 1940 – spending two years in Sarasota and one year in Fort Myers – before being suspended for two years due to World War II. When the Championship resumed in 1945, it was held in Dunedin, Fla., which would become PGA National Golf Club, home of the PGA of America, after the Association relocated its national office from Chicago in 1956.

Florida was the site for the KitchenAid Senior PGA Championship from 1940 through 2000. From 1982 to 2000, the Senior PGA Championship was conducted at PGA National Golf Club in Palm Beach Gardens, Fla.

Today, the KitchenAid Senior PGA Championship brings both the legends of the game and the newest members of senior professional golf to new audiences throughout the United States.

It was during the KitchenAid Senior PGA Championship in December 1979, at Turnberry Isle in North Miami, Fla., that informal meetings first were held among golf's elder statesmen to explore the concept of a senior circuit. As many of golf's leading names passed age 50, they found they were no longer as competitive on the PGA Tour as they once had been, but outside of the KitchenAid Senior PGA Championship, playing opportunities were limited.

The following month, January 1980, the Senior PGA Tour (now PGA Tour Champions) was founded. When the Senior PGA Tour was launched, the KitchenAid Senior PGA Championship was celebrating its 42nd anniversary.

In 2011, KitchenAid became a presenting sponsor and began an alliance with the Championship to present its talented field to new audiences throughout the country. In 2017, KitchenAid bolstered its commitment to golf and the Championship with its debut as title sponsor.

*Won playoff +Two Championships played in 1979 and 1984  Rain-shortened to 54 holes () International Champion

2017 It was a Hall-of-Fame caliber matchup befitting the Nation's Capital. Bernhard Langer, two-time Masters Champion, against three-time Major Champion Vijay Singh. It was the Sunday afternoon of Memorial Day Weekend, on the southern bank of the Potomac River, and the 2017 KitchenAid Senior PGA Championship was on the line.

Champion: Bernhard Langer, Anhausen, Germany
Site:	Trump National Golf Club, D.C. Potomac Falls, Virginia
Date:	May 25-28 Purse: $3 Million
Par:	37-35-72 (7,130 yards)
Field:	156 Cut at 149 76 players advanced

This duel might have best resonated in the mid-90s, but 2017 would do. And best of all, Langer-Singh lived up to the hype.

Singh, 54, was equipped with a one-shot advantage entering the final round. Often times in his career, this was plenty. But he was not only up against the 59-year-old Langer, but the confident version that had won an eighth major championship – the Regions Tradition – the week prior.

The two legends were never separated by more than two strokes on Sunday, and were even for nine holes in a row, until Langer “got (his) nose in front” with a birdie on the 450-yard, par-4 16th.

Singh’s bogey on the 17th negated his closing birdie; so when Langer tapped in for par on 18, the German had his ninth career major on the PGA TOUR Champions to edge past Jack Nicklaus’ eight. Langer also became the first to complete the five-pronged Grand Slam of senior golf. “To surpass Jack’s record of eight majors out here is pretty neat. I’m a good friend of Jack’s and I think very highly of him and whenever you can do something just similar or close to what he’s achieved, you’ve done something pretty special,” Langer said of his ninth major championship, which was nearly a decade in the making. With Langer and Singh occupying the top two slots on the final leaderboard, it was remarkably the eighth time in 78 editions of the Championship that a pair of World Golf Hall-of-Famers finished this storied Championship in first and solo-second place.

2016 It was a week Rocco Mediate will never forget. Eight years after narrowly losing to Tiger Woods in an epic playoff at the 2008 U.S. Open, Mediate is finally a major champion.

Mediate captured the 77th Senior PGA Championship presented by KitchenAid at Harbor Shores and did so in record fashion, establishing a new 72-hole record score of 19-under-par 265—thanks to a 5-under 66 on Sunday—which was three strokes better than the previous low of 268 by Sam Snead in 1973. Mediate also became the first wire-to-wire winner of the Senior PGA Championship in 25 years. Jack Nicklaus was the last to turn that trick in 1991.

"I made everything," Mediate said. "My putter and short game was just stupid this week. I made everything. I tried the old one-shot at a time thing and it works sometimes."

Two of Mediate's best shots from his final-round 66? First there was a fantastic par save on the par-3 13th hole that allowed him to maintain a one-stroke lead at the time.

The second—and the one that pretty much put the tournament away—was this bunker hole out for birdie on the par-3 17th. With the victory—the third of his career on the PGA Tour Champions and first since 2013—Mediate received a lifetime exemption into the Senior PGA Championship and a check for $504,000.

The 51-year-old Montgomery captured the 2015 Senior PGA Championship presented by KitchenAid at French Lick Resort in French Lick, Indiana. He fired a final-round 3-under 69 to win by four shots over Mexico's Esteban Toledo, with a winning score of 8-under 280.

The win was Montgomery's third PGA Tour Champions victory in 12 months. He'd previously won the 2014 Senior PGA Championship presented by KitchenAid and later that summer, the Senior U.S. Open. At French Lick, Montgomery entered the final round with a three-shot lead, but faced anything but a Sunday stroll.

"It was a difficult position to be in at the start of the day, being three ahead," said Montgomery. "Nowhere to go but down, with every hole out there a potential double bogey, I could never relax."

After missing a short par putt at the first, Montgomery rebounded with birdies at holes 5, 7, 9, 10 and 12. Heading to the home stretch his lead was so large that bogeys on holes 15 and 18 didn't matter.

Montgomery is the first player to successfully defend the Senior PGA Championship presented by KitchenAid since Hale Irwin won three in a row from 1996-98. He is also the first to have three major championships represent his first senior event victories since Jack Nicklaus won his first six in the same manner.

Colin Montgomerie learned something about major championship golf at the Senior PGA

Championship presented by KitchenAid. "I learned that I could concentrate on me, and possibly I haven't in the past," the Scot said after shooting a 6-under 65 for a four-stroke victory over Tom Watson.

The victory was Montgomerie's first as a senior, his first in seven years and his first in an official event in the United States. He also claimed a senior major in his fifth attempt, something he didn't accomplish in 71 attempts in his regular tour days. Montgomerie became the third Scotsman to win senior golf's oldest championship.

"I feel fantastic, really superb," said Montgomerie, who finished 13-under 271 for his first victory at Harbor Shores. "I've had a couple of failures here in America and close calls, especially in major championships, and it's great to finally win, never mind a Champions Tour event, but a Senior PGA Championship event."

Montgomerie, 50, birdied Nos. 8, 9 and 10 and, with precise iron shots and clutch putting, pulled away with three more birdies at 12, 14 and 15. Montgomerie left Michigan with a first-place check of $378,000, his name engraved on the Alfred S. Bourne Trophy and a lifetime exemption to the Senior PGA Championship.

Making the most of his first trip to the United States, Kohki Idoki became the first male player from Japan to capture a major championship on any tour. He finished with a 6-under-par 65 at Bellerive Country Club, rallying from a five-stroke deficit against 54-hole leader Kenny Perry. Idoki's 11-under-par 273 total was two strokes better than Perry and St. Louis native Jay Haas. Throughout the final round, at least through 12 holes, the Championship was a better-ball contest between Perry and Haas, a two-time Champion. Nobody could fathom how the 5-foot-5, 136-pound Idoki – with four career titles to his resume – was still a factor. However, Idoki, who had led the Japan PGA Tour for a decade in driving accuracy, was lethal on the massive Bellerive greens. He led the field with just 108 putts to become the first Champion to win on his first attempt since Michael Allen in 2009.

Perry's downward spiral in the final round began at 13, where he missed the green to the right and three-putted for double bogey. That dropped him into a tie with Idoki. Perry then bogeyed 16 and 17. Mark O'Meara finished fourth, three strokes back after a 65 that featured an eagle on No. 17.

England's Roger Chapman scored an improbable wire-to-wire triumph in the 73rd Senior PGA Championship presented by KitchenAid. He built a nine-stroke lead early in the final round, and closed with a 1-over-par 72 for a 13-under-par 271 total. John Cook finished two strokes back, and became the first non-winner in Championship history to post all four rounds in the 60s. With his victory, Chapman became the first Englishman to win the Championship, and the first European since Jock Hutchison in 1947.

Chapman had never won on the Champions Tour, and his lone triumph came in his 472nd tour start, in the 2000 Brazil Rio de Janeiro 500 Years Open. The 53-year-old Chapman started quickly at Harbor Shores, taking the lead on the 11th hole of the opening round. He shared the 36-hole lead with Cook, before separating from the field with a third-round 64.

The first major conducted in Southwest Michigan also featured the timeless talent of four-time Champion Hale Irwin. The fit 66-year-old shot his age in the third round for the fourth time in his career, and finished alone in third place. Kenny Perry registered a Championship-record 62 in the final round.

Tom Watson holed a short birdie putt on the first playoff hole, to defeat

David Eger and capture the 72nd Senior PGA Championship presented by KitchenAid. Both players had finished at 10-under-par 278 after 72 holes at Valhalla Golf Club. The 61-year-old Watson, trailing Eger by one stroke with four holes left in regulation, became the oldest player to win a major since the Champions Tour began in 1980. He also became the second-oldest winner of the Senior PGA Championship, behind Jock Hutchison who was 62 in 1947.

Watson, who won his first Senior PGA Championship at Ridgewood Country Club in 2001, also matched Hutchison in capturing two Championships a decade apart.

In the playoff, Watson went for the 535-yard, par-5 18th green with his second shot. His approach caromed off the ridge of the green and landed in the deep front bunker.

Eger hit a wedge approach to 10 feet, but missed the birdie attempt. After blasting out of the sand to three feet, Watson calmly stroked in the winner.

Japan's Kiyoshi Murota closed with a 72 and was alone in third.

Tom Lehman captured the 71st Senior PGA Championship at Colorado Golf Club with a par on the first playoff hole, where Fred Couples and David Frost double-bogeyed after errant tee shots. The same Lehman who won the 1996 British Open; had led the U.S. Open three straight years after 54 holes only to come up short; and was runner-up in the 1994 Masters, was a study in calm on a Sunday in Colorado's rarefied air. Though an untested venue, the Ben Crenshaw-Bill Coore design served up a remarkably old recipe for drama – a challenging 7,464 yard set-up, tricky greens and relentless swirling wind. Lehman, 51, the only player to turn in four sub-par rounds in the field, picked the right club to begin the sudden-death playoff at 18, the first since 2008 in the Senior PGA Championship. He hit a drive down the right side of the fairway. Couples followed with a drive that landed left into a shrub, forcing him to take a penalty drop. Frost's tee shot nestled in a left-hand bunker, and he pulled his second shot left of the gallery into the pines. After clearing dozens of pine cones between him and the green, Frost's third shot careened across the green and down a slope. Lehman his a pitching wedge 132 yards to 12 feet and waited for Frost and Couples to join him on the green.

Lehman earned a berth in the playoff after recovering from bogeys on 2, 3 and 5, and playing the final 13 holes bogey-free at 3-under-par for a 1-under-par 71. He proved how much he enjoyed the 445-yard, par-4 18th when he got up and down for par to end regulation. His approach from deep rough landed some 20 yards from the green. He pitched to 4½ feet and calmly knocked home his par.

2009 In the world of senior professional golf, where second chances and extended careers are part of the landscape, there are stories like Michael Allen, whose debut in the 70th Senior PGA Championship was courtesy of a special invitation extended two months in advance. A 50-year-old journeyman professional, Allen erased a 334-event winless slate with a rock-solid final-round 3-under-par 67 to capture the Senior PGA Championship. His final-round performance at Canterbury Golf Club just outside Cleveland gave him a 6-under-par 274 total and a two-stroke triumph over former Masters Champion Larry Mize, a guy who found his own major magic in 1987 when he won at Augusta National with a miracle pitch-in.

Allen crafted his own Canterbury tale by finishing his final 54 holes 10-under par, and was the only player in the field to post three rounds in the 60s. Allen joined Arnold Palmer (1980) as the only players to win the Senior PGA Championship while making their debut on the Champions Tour. Allen's $360,000 paycheck was the second-largest of his career, topped only by the $648,000 he earned for a runner-up finish in the PGA Tour's Turning Stone Resort Championship in 2007. He became the 23rd player to win this event in his first appearance and the fourth player in Champions Tour history to win in his debut in a major tournament.

Jay Haas, who has played more championship golf at Oak Hill Country Club than most of his peers, knew how valued a par would be on the 18th hole on a Sunday afternoon in the 69th Senior PGA Championship. After all, this was the devilish hole that Haas failed to par on a Sunday 13 years earlier in the 1995 Ryder Cup. Had he been able to execute that day, America would have stemmed a European rally and held on to the Ryder Cup.

But, Haas and the remainder of the American team couldn't overcome the punishing rough and the steep uphill climb at Oak Hill's closing par-4 summit. Fast forward to an Oak Hill Country Club that played every bit as difficult as any course in recent championship memory, and you may understand how Haas was feeling with a one-stroke lead over Germany's Bernhard Langer – who happened to be a member of the victorious '95 European Team.

Things were different this time, with Haas ripping a drive to the left-center of the fairway, the hitting a 6-iron to within 15 feet of a hole tucked on the left-hand portion of the hill. He waited as Langer missed a 55-footer for birdie, then stroked his first putt gingerly down the slope. The ball just grazed the hole and Haas calmly stepped back in to make a winning two-foot par putt.

Haas turned in a five-bogey, one-birdie 74 to close at 7-over-par 287, marking the highest scoring Senior PGA Championship since the format moved to 72 holes in 1958. Haas' winning total is the highest in relation to par, erasing Sam Snead's 2-over-par total in 1970. Scott Hoch, Joey Sindelar and 1987 U.S. Open-winner Scott Simpson finished tied for third, two strokes back.

2007 Denis Watson, who has traveled to the heart of darkness in his professional golf career, found redemption after 23 years on this strip of land and sand along the Atlantic. The 51-year-old native of Zimbabwe stood tall and delivered when front-runner Eduardo Romero of Argentina made late mistakes, and went on to capture the 68th Senior PGA Championship for his first victory since 1984.

Making his first appearance in the most prestigious event in senior golf, Watson posted a final-round 4-under-par 68 to finish at 9-under 279.

Watson defeated Romero by two strokes while his childhood friend Nick Price of South Africa finished three strokes back. Watson became the first international-born Senior PGA Champion since 1990, when South Africa's Gary Player won the last of his three titles.

Watson's triumph led a global parade on the leader board, with international-born players grabbing the top four spots.

Romero, the leader for 67 holes, closed with a 72 and 281. Price, making his first Championship appearance, was third after a 71 and Japan's Naomichi "Joe" Ozaki finished with a 72 to garner fourth place.

The top four were part of 36 international players representing 14 countries.

2006 Jay Haas blasted out of a greenside bunker on the third playoff hole at Oak Tree Golf Club and made his 12-foot par putt, which was enough to hang on to defeat Brad Bryant for the 67th Senior PGA Championship.

Champion: Jay Haas, Greenville, S.C.
Site: Oak Tree Golf Club, Edmond, Okla.
Date: May 25-28	Purse: $2,000,000
Par: 36-35 -72 (7,105 yards)
Entries: 156	Cut at: 148	77 players advanced

While Haas mounted a front-nine charge with five straight birdies, the back nine belonged to Bryant, who closed eagle-par-birdie, the latter a highlight reel effort on the 72nd hole to force a playoff with Haas, the 12th playoff in Championship history.

Bryant's missed four-footer came on the third trip to the par-4 18th.

Haas hoisted the Alfred S. Bourne Trophy, and pocketed $360,000 in the oldest and most prestigious event in senior golf. The same player who finished a stroke behind Hale Irwin in the 2004 Senior PGA Championship, and had third-place finishes in the 2004 U.S. Senior Open, 1999 PGA Championship and 1995 Masters, was now ushered into an elite club.

Haas posted a 3-under 68 and Bryant a 71 to finish at 5-under-par 279. Third-round leader Gil Morgan, who struggled to a 74 on his home course, finished two strokes behind in third place.

2005 Mike Reid executed inspirational, steady golf when all around him were losing their cool at Laurel Valley Golf Club, and rallied to win the 66th Senior PGA Championship. Trailing by six strokes with eight holes to play, Reid capped his charge with a 30-foot eagle putt on the 72nd hole to land in a playoff with Jerry Pate and Dana Quigley, then completed his mission with a birdie on the first extra hole – the 18th – to earn his first major title. This Senior PGA Championship will be remembered for Quigley holding a lead from the 17th hole of the third round through the 17th of the final day. But, the Iron Man of golf, competing in his 259th consecutive event, withered down the stretch.

After Quigley opened the door with a bogey on the 71st hole and a scrambling birdie at the 18th, it was suddenly Pate's chance to win. But Reid, nicknamed "Radar" for his laser-like ability to find the fairway, slipped under the radar to win. Reid, down by three shots with one hole to play, forced himself into a three-way playoff with Quigley and Pate with a long eagle putt on No. 18, then birdied the same hole during the only playoff hole for his first tournament win since 1990. The threesome had tied after 72 holes of regulation play at 8-under-par 280. Pate, who has been absent from tournament golf for more than 20 years, missed an 8-footer for birdie that would have forced a second playoff hole, and Quigley was out of it after hitting his second shot into the water on the 515-yard, par-5 hole.

2004 Hale Irwin stroked a memorable 40-foot lag putt up a steep crest in the 18th green at Valhalla Golf Club, then tapped in a one-foot birdie putt and closed another chapter for one of golf's most amazing performers.

Irwin, who celebrated his 59th birthday three days later, earned his fourth Senior PGA Championship and seventh senior major, after a marathon week of weather delays, nearby tornadoes and more than seven inches of rain saturating the course. Irwin overcame three back-nine bogeys by sinking a clutch 12-foot birdie on the 13th hole, making a "gut check" six-foot par putt at the par-4 15th and finishing with his birdie at the 18th. He posted an even-par 71, for a 72-hole total of 8-under-par 276. Champions Tour rookie Jay Haas, who pushed a six-foot birdie putt on the 18th to lose by one stroke, closed with a 70. Craig Stadler, who pitched in for eagle on the 18th for a 69, was third at 279, and Tom Watson, England's Mark James and Canada's Dave Barr shared fourth at 282.

The Monday finish was the third in Senior PGA Championship history, following Doug Tewell's victory in an abbreviated 54-hole Championship in 2000, and the late Fred Haas Jr., who won in 1966, after the first round was postponed.

2003 John Jacobs wrote a special chapter in the oldest and most prestigious event in senior golf on a soggy, challenging 6,928-yard Donald Ross masterpiece layout some 45 minutes east of Philadelphia. The 144-player field featured perhaps the strongest and deepest senior field with 22 players who had combined for 73 major championships, and 30 international players representing 12 countries. For much of the first 54 holes, it was anyone's race to the finish.

Champion: John Jacobs, Scottsdale, Ariz.
Site:	Aronimink Golf Club, Newtown Square, Pa.
Date:	June 5-8	Purse: $2,000,000
Par:	35-35—70 (6,928 yards)
Entries:	144	Cut at 147 71 players advanced

Jacobs completed a rain-delayed 13 holes of his third round Sunday morning for a 71, standing two strokes behind Ireland's Des Smyth. Jacobs then gritted his teeth around another cigar and finished with a 2-under-par 68, for a winning 72-hole total of 4-under-par 276. It was good for a two-stroke margin over Bobby Wadkins, who finished second a year ago. Bruce Lietzke and defending Champion Fuzzy Zoeller tied for third at 279, while Smyth, who finished with a 74, and 2000 Champion Doug Tewell, with a 69, shared fifth at 280.

At age 58, Jacobs became the oldest player to win the Senior PGA Championship since 1976, when Pete Cooper cradled the Alfred S. Bourne Trophy at age 61. He also is the oldest winner on the Champions Tour since its origin in 1980. More important to Jacobs, other than a $360,000 first-place check, was the fact he became the first from his family to win a major championship on any Tour.

2002 Fuzzy Zoeller executed several daring escapes for par coming down the stretch to win the Senior PGA Championship at Firestone Country Club, his first victory since joining the Senior PGA Tour (now Champions Tour) earlier in the year. It also was Zoeller's first victory in exactly 15 years, 10 months and 27 days.

Zoeller's closing 2-under-par 68 gave him a winning total of 2-under 278, two strokes better than third-round leader Bobby Wadkins and three-time Senior PGA Champion Hale Irwin.

He collected $360,000 — his largest check in 27 years as a professional — and became the 20th player to win the Senior PGA Championship in his first attempt.

The victory was Zoeller's first in any tournament since winning the 1986 Anheuser-Busch Classic on the PGA Tour.

At the par-4 13th, holding on to a one-shot lead over Wadkins, Zoeller drove into the shin-high rough lining the narrow fairways at Firestone Country Club. He was able to advance the ball to equally heavy rough closer to the green, then hit a wedge to 10 feet and made the par putt to retain the lead. Zoeller said the turning point of the round was the putt at 13.

Irwin, winner of the 1996, 1997 and 1998 Senior PGA Championships, posted a final-round 68 and shared runner-up honors with Wadkins at even-par 280

2001 Tom Watson, that man from Kansas with a swagger in his walk and a split-toothed grin, didn't need a rainbow to carry him home at The Ridgewood Country Club in Paramus, N.J.

Champion: Tom Watson, Leawood, Kan.
Site: The Ridgewood Country Club, Paramus, N.J.
Date: May 24-27	Purse: $2,000,000
Par: 36-36—72 (6,904 yards)
Entries: 144	Cut at: 150	79 players advanced

Watson's putter worked the magic, answering playing partner Jim Thorpe with a clutch birdie putt on the 16th green, then holding on for a 5-under-par 67 and a one-stroke victory in the 62nd Senior PGA Championship.

Locked in a pulsating duel with Thorpe over the final nine holes, Watson saw a three-stroke lead dwindle to a stroke after a three-putt on the 14th green, then birdied the 16th, scrambled at the 17th for par and stood back to watch Thorpe miss a tying six-foot birdie putt on the 18th green.

Watson had missed winner a PGA Championship in 28 tries during his Hall of Fame career. But he was noticeably at peace with himself throughout a weekend in which he finished 11-under par and made more pressure putts than he has in recent years.

Watson's winning total of 14-under-par 274 included seven birdies and two bogeys in the final round. Thorpe came home a stroke back after a 68, while Bob Gilder posted a 70 to land alone in third at 277 in his Championship debut. Allen Doyle, the 1999 Senior PGA Champion, was another stroke back at 278 after a 70, and three-time Champion Hale Irwin came in with the day's low round of 66 to share fifth with Stewart Ginn at 281.

2000 Doug Tewell believed he was overdue for a spot in the winner's circle as a senior professional. What he didn't realize was that he would need an extra day, a load of patience and that he would blossom in a major championship. Tewell completed a seven-stroke victory at PGA National Golf Club in Palm Beach Gardens, Fla., finishing with a 67 for a 54-hole record total of 15-under-par 201 to win the 61st PGA Seniors' Championship Presented by Advil.

Larry Nelson, Tom Kite, Dana Quigley and three-time Champion Hale Irwin finished at 208. It was the final PGA Seniors' Championship contended at PGA National Golf Club, the host for the previous 18 years. The oldest and most prestigious event in senior golf began to travel nationwide in 2001. Tewell became the 19th player to win the PGA Seniors' Championship in his first attempt and the 10th to mark his first senior victory at a major championship.

Tewell's winning total set a new 54-hole scoring record, bettering the 202 posted by Sam Snead (1973) and Bruce Crampton (1993). The event was shortened to 54 holes due to seven interruptions featuring lightning and rain that cost the field nearly 18 hours of playing time. It was the first time the Championship was played at 54 holes since 1957. Tewell's victory margin was the event's largest since 1991, when Jack Nicklaus defeated Crampton by six strokes. Tewell earned $324,000 for the victory from a $1.8 million purse. It was Tewell's first tour victory of any kind since he won the 1987 Pensacola Open at age 37.

Allen Doyle, a 50-year old Tour professional for just four years and owner of Doyle's Golf Center in La Grange, Ga., turned in the round of a lifetime to capture his first major senior championship. Doyle's closing 8-under-par 64 on PGA National Golf Club's Champion Course completed a four-stroke rally and was the lowest closing round in Championship history. Doyle earned $315,000 for his 72-hole performance of 14-under-par 274, and a two-stroke victory over Argentina's Vicente Fernandez.

Doyle's path to the Championship will be remembered not so much by his final score as by how he reached the pinnacle on the demanding 6,754-yard Champion Course. Doyle overcame a fourth-hole double bogey by taking just 22 putts. He also chipped in for an eagle-3 at the par-5 10th hole, then struck a 186-yard 3-iron to set up a one-foot birdie at the par-4 16th to seal his victory. Doyle's victory made him the 18th player to win the PGA Seniors' Championship in his first attempt. It was Doyle's sixth professional victory in just three years, with four of those victories coming on the former Nike Tour.

Defending Champion Hale Irwin, bidding to tie Walter Hagen for four consecutive major PGA titles, finished with a 69 and tied for 11th.

Presented by Advil

1998 Hale Irwin devised a superb game plan to achieve a milestone victory in the 59th PGA Seniors' Championship Presented by Advil at PGA National Golf Club. He arrived six days early "to get some of the cobwebs out" before scorching the Champion Course for 72 holes for a 13-under-par 275 total and closing with a 2-under-par 70. Irwin finished seven strokes ahead of first-time competitor Larry Nelson and by eight over Gil Morgan, each of whom birdied the 18th hole for 72s.

Dave Stockton and Dale Douglass tied for fourth at 1-over-par 287, the only other members of the field to finish under par.

Irwin separated himself from the rest of the field in the third round, when he sank a 50-foot putt from the fringe of the green for a birdie on the par-3 seventh hole. That stroke gave him a five-shot advantage entering the final 18 holes. Irwin earned an event-record first-place prize of $270,000, the largest paycheck of his career, and became the second player to win three consecutive PGA Seniors' Championships — Eddie Williams was the first to perform the feat, winning in 1942, 1945 and 1946, with World War II interrupting his victory string. But even Williams, who outlasted Jock Hutchison in an 18-hole playoff for the 1946 Championship, didn't have the same stranglehold on the title as Irwin. Irwin also is the first player since 1956 — when Peter Thomson won a third straight British Open — to capture three consecutive major championships on any tour.

Presented by Advil

1997 Hale Irwin arrived at PGA National Golf Club in Palm Beach Gardens, Fla., on a mission to repeat as PGA Seniors' Champion and sustain momentum throughout the year.

He opened with a methodical 4-under-par 68 and coasted to a 12-stroke victory and a second consecutive title in the 58th PGA Seniors' Championship Presented by Advil. It was the largest victory margin for any Senior PGA Tour professional and the second-highest margin in PGA Seniors' Championship history. Sam Snead won by 15 strokes in 1973, seven years before the Senior PGA Tour began.

The 51-year-old Irwin became the first back-to-back Win in Championship history since Snead in 1972 and 1973, and the fifth player to win consecutive PGA Seniors' Championship titles. Irwin is the 12th multiple champion in event history. His 14-under-par 274 total was his third victory of the year, and Irwin went on to do what he had planned — finishing the year in style. He tied the Senior PGA Tour record with nine victories, became golf's first $2 million season money-winner and was named Senior PGA Tour Player of the Year.

Dale Douglass and 1991 Champion Jack Nicklaus, Irwin's closest pursuers, each birdied the 18th hole in the final round to share second place at 286. Irwin opened the final round with a seven-stroke lead and left no doubt that he wouldn't sit on the lead. He attacked the Champion Course, increasing his lead over the field by holing out for an eagle from a green-side bunker on the third hole. He followed with birdies on the fourth, 10th and 16th holes to offset a three-putt bogey on the 11th.

Hale Irwin had made a reputation of playing difficult courses well, winning three U.S. Open titles and attacking, rather than playing conservatively, on the challenging layouts. The 50-year-old Irwin arrived at the 57th PGA Seniors' Championship in need of a spark, however. He had squandered a three-stroke lead two weeks earlier in the final round of The Tradition, which was uncharacteristic of someone who had a history of holding leads throughout an event. Still searching for that initial senior major title, Irwin found the wider fairways of PGA National Golf Club an incentive. He opened with a 66, the lowest score of the week, before struggling to a 74 in the second round. But it was a momentary lapse. He bounced back to form with closing rounds of 69 and 71. In the final round, Irwin sealed his victory with a 35-foot birdie putt on the treacherous par-3 15th hole to build a five-stroke cushion. Irwin's 72-hole total of 8-under-par 280 gave him a two-stroke victory over Isao Aoki, who recorded his fourth consecutive top-five finish. Argentina's Vicente Fernandez, who turned 50 two weeks before the Championship, finished third with a 73-284. Irwin became the 17th player to win the PGA Seniors' Championship in his first attempt. The 144-player field averaged 75.9 strokes. Only 15 players had sub-70 rounds and four were on the final day.

Raymond Floyd averted the back-nine collapse that prevented his winning the title a year earlier by using textbook course management, to cruise to victory in the 56th PGA Seniors' Championship. Floyd built a two-stroke lead on Jim Colbert after a third-round 5-under-par 67. He made two front-nine birdies in the final round and a key par-saving putt on the sixth hole, before coming home with 14 consecutive pars and a five-stroke victory margin over the trio of John Paul Cain, Larry Gilbert and defending Champion Lee Trevino. Floyd's final-round 70 gave him a winning total of 11-under-par 277 and enabled him to become the 11th player to win both a PGA Championship and PGA Seniors' Championship. Floyd joined Trevino as the only players to surpass the $8 million mark in career earnings on both the PGA Tour and Senior PGA Tour.

Jim Albus, who reached 8-under-par early in his round, stumbled to a 75-286 and tied for 10th. Trevino birdied the 18th hole for a 71 and shared second place with Gilbert and Cain, who each had final-round 69s.

1994 Raymond Floyd, one of golf's renowned front-runners, stumbled on the back nine of the Champion Course at PGA National Golf Club and handed the 55th PGA Seniors' Championship to Lee Trevino. It was Trevino's second PGA Seniors' Championship in three years, but perhaps his most surprising major triumph. Trevino watched as Floyd's four-stroke lead evaporated on the final nine holes.

Floyd dunked three shots in the water on two of the most demanding par-3 holes in senior golf. He quadruple-bogeyed the 164-yard 15th and double-bogeyed the 152-yard 17th to struggle in with a 75. Trevino's final-round 70 gave him a 72-hole total of 9-under-par 279, a stroke higher than his winning total in 1992. Trevino, who earned his 12th career tournament victory in Florida, finished with 108 putts — second best among a field of 144 players. Jim Colbert, who birdied the 18th hole for a 67, was runner-up at 280, and Floyd tied Dave Stockton for third at 282.

1993 Tom Wargo of Centralia, Ill., became the first PGA club professional since 1979 to win the PGA Seniors' Championship, defeating Bruce Crampton on the second extra hole. Both players had tied at 13-under-par 275 for 72 holes. In the process, Wargo won the hearts of club professionals everywhere and became a gallery favorite, as thousands of spectators followed him throughout one of the most dramatic PGA Seniors' Championships ever.

Crampton played a near-flawless 6-under-par 66 in the final round to force a playoff with Wargo, who scrambled throughout the final day for a 2-under-par 70. Wargo made a superb bunker save for par on the par-4, 412-yard 16th, and Crampton exploded his birdie putt three feet past the cup. At the par-3 17th, Crampton's 7-iron tee shot was pushed into a pond. Wargo safely played his ball into the middle of the green and two-putted for a winning par.

1992 Lee Trevino captured his first PGA Seniors' Championship in dramatic fashion, knocking in par-saving putts on the final two holes to finish at 10-under-par 278, holding off by one stroke, Mike Hill, whose final-round 69 was the day's low effort.

The 52-year-old Trevino, pocketing a tournament-record winner's share of $100,000, became the 10th player to have won the PGA Championship (1974, '84) and the PGA Seniors' Championship.

Presented by Oldsmobile

1991 Jack Nicklaus led from start to finish, firing a 17-under-par 271, to win the 1991 PGA Seniors' Championship by six strokes over Bruce Crampton.

It was Nicklaus' fourth win in six senior events since turning 50 in January 1990. It was the fifth time Crampton had finished runner-up in a major championship — each time to Nicklaus.

Crampton trailed Nicklaus by eight strokes after three rounds and was never closer than six. Nicklaus built a nine-stroke lead after a birdie and a Crampton bogey on the ninth hole, and a 10-stroke lead when Crampton three-putted No. 11, his second three-putt in three holes.

Nicklaus' 271 was 10 strokes less than the previous tournament best on the Champion Course site, host of nine PGA Seniors' Championships.

1988 One of only four players to capture all four Grand Slam titles, Gary Player earned his second PGA Seniors' Championship trophy and his fourth major in senior golf. A final round of 2-under-par 70 accomplished this latest victory. Player finished three strokes up on defending Champion Chi Chi Rodriguez with a 4-under-par 284. Rodriguez and Al Geiberger had been tied for the third-round lead. Left-hander Bob Charles, a resident of PGA National, built an amazing five-stroke lead the first day, with a near-record 64 on the Champion Course.

1987 Chi Chi Rodriguez staged a dramatic comeback and earned one of the most popular victories in PGA Seniors' Championship history. Trailing third-round leader Dale Douglass by six strokes, Rodriguez had a final round of 5-under-par 67 to edge Douglass by one with a 6-under-par 282 total. Amazingly, Rodriguez used a new set of clubs he purchased from the golf shop at PGA National after a third round of 76. His mentor, eight-time Florida Open champion and 1976 PGA Seniors' Champion Pete Cooper, walked with Rodriguez every step of the way the last day, after missing the 36-hole cut.

1986 The PGA Seniors' Championship settled into February dates, and South African Gary Player became the second foreigner in a row to claim the title, outdistancing Lee Elder by two strokes with a 7-under-par 281. Though neither of the past two Champions was in the field — Arnold Palmer had back spasms and Peter Thomson was home in Australia — record crowds turned out. It was Player's second victory in three Senior Tour starts since turning 50 in November 1985.

1984 The troops in Arnie's Army have a million stories to tell, and they can put his second victory in the PGA Seniors' Championship near the top of their lists. On one day, in nearly ideal playing conditions on the Champion Course at PGA National GC, he shot a course- and Championship-record 9-under-par 63. But when the weather turned horrendous overnight, with stiff winds and 40-degree temperatures, he was almost a stroke a hole higher with 79. Still, he never surrendered his lead. Palmer finished with 6-under-par 282, two strokes better than defending Champion Don January.

1980 Arnold Palmer made his debut in the PGA Seniors' Championship at the age of 51, and won with a birdie on the first hole of a playoff. Observers predicted he would do the same for the new Senior PGA Tour as he did for all of golf in the late 1950s and '60s. His victory at Turnberry Isle CC proved to be nearly as exciting as any he had in the past. Palmer birdied the first extra hole from seven feet to edge first-round leader Paul Harney, after they tied at 1-over-par 289. "It's the PGA Championship I never won," said Palmer.

1979 The PGA Seniors' Championship jump-started the Senior PGA Tour with a $100,000 tournament just before Christmas at Turnberry Isle CC in North Miami. This doubled the purse of the previous five years and signaled the start of what became one of the biggest success stories in the 1980s — the Senior PGA Tour. Don January, just 26 days past his 50th birthday and with earnings of $80,000 on the “regular” Tour during the year, led all the way with an 18-under-par 270 total on the South Course. This became the second-lowest total in PGA Seniors' Championship history. He finished eight shots ahead of runner-up George Bayer, of Detroit.

1979 Jack Fleck won the 1955 U.S. Open and two tour titles in the early 1960s, all in playoffs. Therefore, it was fitting that his only victory in the PGA Seniors' Championship also would be in a playoff. The second straight three-man playoff ended on the third hole of the Magnolia Course at Walt Disney World, when Fleck sank a 25-foot putt for birdie to beat Bill Johnston, of Phoenix, Ariz., and Bob Erickson, of Casselberry, Fla. All three tied at 1-over-par 289, with three former Champions — Julius Boros, Roberto De Vicenzo and Joe Jimenez — tied for fourth, one stroke behind at 290.

39TH SENIOR PGA CHAMPIONSHIP

1978 The first three-man playoff in PGA Seniors' Championship history ended quickly. Joe Jimenez of Jefferson City, Mo., sank a four-foot birdie putt on the first extra hole at the Walt Disney World Magnolia course after hitting a 4-iron to the green. "I came here just trying to finish in the top 10," said Jimenez. "I didn't think about coming here to win." Jimenez posted consistent rounds of 72-71-73-70 and was tied in regulation at 2-under-par 286 with Manuel de la Torre of Milwaukee, Wis., and Joe Cheves of Morganton, N.C.

37TH SENIOR PGA CHAMPIONSHIP

1976 A tornado warning interrupted play for 40 minutes during the final round. When play resumed, Pete Cooper, a 61-year-old veteran from Branford, Fla., played 1-under-par golf the last five holes, for a par 72 on the Magnolia Course and a 5-under-par 283 total. For the second year in a row, Fred Wampler was runner-up, this time by five strokes, as he made double-bogey on each of the last two holes. After receiving the keys to a new Lincoln Mark IV, Cooper, who owns a farm in rural Florida, said, "They'll run me out of the county if I drive up in this. I'd look better in a Lincoln tractor."

35TH SENIOR PGA CHAMPIONSHIP

1974 M.R. "Chick" Harbert, former PGA Champion and Ryder Cup Team captain, offered St. Lucie CC in Port St. Lucie as the site of the PGA Seniors' Championship. Roberto De Vincenzo, eligible for the first time, arrived from Argentina with little concern about winning. "Maybe I make enough money to pay for the trip, but I tell my wife we come up and just have a good time visiting old friends." De Vincenzo had the best time of all, with a 15-under-par 273 to win by three shots. Julius Boros and Art Wall tied for second.

1973 This is the one they're still talking about, and probably will for as long as the PGA Seniors' Championship is played. Sam Snead was an amazing 20-under par in four days on the East Course at PGA National GC, with rounds of 66-66-67-69-268. "I thought I played pretty well," said Julius Boros, who was second but 15 strokes behind. Boros finished at 283, two strokes lower than his winning total two years earlier on the same course. It was the last PGA Seniors' Championship at this site, now known as BallenIsles Country Club.

33RD SENIOR PGA CHAMPIONSHIP

1972 Coming from behind in the final round, Sam Snead reclaimed by one stroke the title he had surrendered to Julius Boros a year earlier. Down at the 13th tee by three, after a double-bogey at No. 12, Snead side-saddled a 25-footer for a birdie on No. 14. He finished with four straight pars, as Boros suffered bogeys on Nos. 13 and 14. Boros finished with a bogey on No. 18, giving Snead his fifth PGA Seniors' Championship. Boros and Tommy Bolt, each with 75 in the final round, tied for second.

1971 Former two-time U.S. Open champions Julius Boros (1952, '63) and Dr. Cary Middlecoff (1949, '56) qualified for their first PGA Seniors' Championship and met with far different results. Boros strolled to victory with a 3-under-par 285, the only player under par for the route. Middlecoff withdrew after an 80-79-159 during the first two days. Three former PGA Seniors' Champions finished in the top four, with Tommy Bolt getting runner-up honors at even-par 288. Defending Champion Sam Snead was third and Chandler Harper finished fourth.

31ST SENIOR PGA CHAMPIONSHIP

1970 Inclement weather throughout the week-end couldn't prevent Sam Snead from capturing a record fourth PGA Seniors' Championship. However, it did cost the defending Champion, Tommy Bolt, who battled the flu. When the second round was delayed by rain, Bolt elected to withdraw. Snead won with a final round of 4-over-par 76 for a 2-over-par 290 total, two strokes ahead of former Champion Freddie Haas. It was the first winning score over par since Ernie Newnam's 2-over-par 146 for two rounds in 1952, at the old PGA National in Dunedin.

1969 Tommy Bolt won the PGA Seniors' Championship in his first year of eligibility, prompting Sam Snead, a three-time former Champion, to exclaim, "You know, it's real funny the way a guy is 39 one year and beats you in the PGA Seniors' the next." Bolt posted a 5-under-par 67 on the East Course at PGA National GC in the final round, for a one-shot margin of victory over Pete Fleming of Hot Springs, Ark.

29TH SENIOR PGA CHAMPIONSHIP

1968 With 10 past Seniors' Champions in the field, defending Champion Sam Snead made a gallant run at the 29th renewal of the PGA Seniors' Championship, but in the end finished runner-up, four shots behind Chandler Harper of Portsmouth, Va. Harper was the victor with a 9-under-par 279 total. His $4,000 prize was $500 more than he received for winning the PGA Championship in 1950.

1967 Sam Snead demonstrated his new “Squat-shot” putting style, claiming he could “see the line of the putts better by facing the hole.” (The between-the-legs “croquet” putting method was outlawed by the USGA within a year.) Snead posted a 9-under-par 279, winning the overall title by nine shots over Bob Hamilton and 10 over defending Champion Freddie Haas, who finished third.

27TH SENIOR PGA CHAMPIONSHIP

1966 The first round of the PGA Seniors’ Championship was postponed one day by rain, and this proved to be a blessing for Fred Haas Jr., of Metairie, La., who turned 50 just 52 days earlier. With a virus and a 100-degree temperature, he probably should not have played. However, as the weather and Haas’ health improved sufficiently, he became the only player not to shoot over par in any round on the East Course at PGA National GC in Palm Beach Gardens. He won with a 2-under-par 286, two strokes better than John Barnum and E.J. “Dutch” Harrison.

With the PGA Seniors' Championship being staged at Fort Lauderdale CC, Sam Snead captured his second title in a row with a 10-under-par 278, coasting to a four-stroke victory over Joe Lopez Sr., of Miami, Fla. Snead won despite pulling his drive on the 72nd hole out-of-bounds and making double-bogey. Snead's play was so dominant, Chick Harbert was heard to say, "We couldn't beat him on the regular Tour, so how do you expect us to beat him now as a senior?"

After bypassing the Championship in 1963, his first year of eligibility, the legendary Sam Snead made his first appearance in the PGA Seniors' Championship a memorable one. For the first time, the Championship was played at the new PGA National GC, currently known as BallenIsles CC, in Palm Beach Gardens, Fla. Snead opened with an eagle on the first hole of the East Course and was never caught, posting a 9-under-par 279 for his first of a record six PGA Seniors' Championship victories.

1963 When the planned new national headquarters for The PGA of America and the accompanying golf courses in Palm Beach Gardens weren't ready for the 1963 PGA Seniors' Championship, a move to Port St. Lucie CC, about an hour north on Florida's east coast, was arranged and hosted by M.R. "Chick" Harbert, former PGA Champion and Ryder Cup Team Captain. Two golf courses were available there, and for the first time in PGA Seniors' history, the winner registered four sub-70 rounds. Herman Barron, of White Plains, N.Y., won with a 16-under-par 272, two strokes better than John Barnum, of Belmont, Mich.

19TH SENIOR PGA CHAMPIONSHIP

1958 Two more benchmarks were established that helped bring the 19th PGA Seniors' Championship into the major arena – a $10,000 purse and 72 holes of competition, with a 36-hole cut made to the low 100 players and ties. “Squire” Gene Sarazen earned his second title with an even-par 288, for a three-stroke win over Charles Sheppard of West Newton, Mass. For his victory, Sarazen received $1,200.

17TH SENIOR PGA CHAMPIONSHIP

1956 The PGA Seniors' Championship purse was increased to $6,500 and the field topped 200 for the first time. Long Island professional Pete Burke, brother of 1931 U.S. Open Champion Billy Burke, finished one shot ahead of Ock Willoweit. The finish wasn't easy for Burke, who had a pair of opening 70s and appeared to be coasting to victory. But with a double-bogey on the 52nd hole, he was forced to par the last two holes to tie Willoweit, who was in the clubhouse with a 216 total. After making par on the 53rd hole, Burke hooked his drive into the trees on the final hole. After a spectacular second shot, which he hooked around the trees to within 12 feet of the hole, Burke sank the putt to win the first-place check of $1,000.

1951 For the fourth time in 12 years, the PGA Seniors' Championship went to a playoff, and for the third time, Jock Hutchison was beaten. Though he was 68 years old, Hutchison nearly shot his age, a 3-under-par 69, in the final round to tie Al Watrous at 142. In the playoff, fatigue caught up with Hutchison, the two-time former PGA Seniors' Champion, on the final nine. He had 37-44-81, losing to Watrous by six shots.

NINTH SENIOR PGA CHAMPIONSHIP

1948 Charles McKenna of Rochester, N.Y., won the title wire-to-wire.

He was medalist in the first round, with a 3-under-par 69, which was the lowest score of the tournament. In the final round, McKenna slipped to a 72, but none of the challengers was able to overcome his first-day advantage. Ben Richter made the strongest bid with a second-round 71 to take runner-up honors for the second year in a row. Defending Champion Jock Hutchison tied for third with George Smith of Lake Forest, Ill., each posting 3-over-par 145.

1947 Jock Hutchison got his revenge after finishing second the previous two years, duplicating his victory from the inaugural PGA Seniors' Championship 10 years earlier. Despite high winds, Hutchison fired a closing round of 1-under-par 71, for a three-stroke victory over Ben Richter, of St. Louis, Mo. Eddie Williams, looking for a fourth title, found himself in the running after an opening-round 75, but shot 80 on the final round, to break his streak of three consecutive victories in the PGA Seniors' Championship.

SEVENTH SENIOR PGA CHAMPIONSHIP

1946 Eddie Williams made it three PGA Seniors' titles in a row — a record that still stands — again coming from behind to beat former Champion Jock Hutchison, this time in an 18-hole playoff. In regulation play, Hutchison was one shot ahead of Williams going into the 35th hole, but he bogeyed the hole. To get into the playoff, Williams was forced to make a 10-foot putt on the last hole. In the 18-hole playoff, both players were tied after 14 holes, but Hutchison hit a shot into the water on the 15th hole, and Williams made a birdie to claim victory.

1945

With World War II beginning to wind down, the PGA Seniors' Championship resumed, this time at Dunedin, Fla., which became the permanent home for the next 18 years. Eddie Williams retained the title he had held since his 1942 victory. Williams scored birdies on the last two holes in the final round to overcome a one-stroke advantage held by Jock Hutchison, who finished in second place.

THIRD SENIOR PGA CHAMPIONSHIP

1940 In an attempt to find better weather, the third PGA Seniors' Championship was played at the North Shore and Bobby Jones Courses in Sarasota, Fla., in January 1940, which meant no tournament during the calendar year of 1939. After regulation play, Otto Hackbarth, with a closing round 1-under-par 70, tied Jock Hutchison at 4-over-par 146. In the 18-hole playoff, both players shot 74, which forced a second 18-hole playoff in which Hackbarth prevailed by one stroke, 74-75.

Fred McLeod won an 18-hole playoff to capture the second PGA Seniors' Championship at Augusta National, 30 years after his U.S. Open triumph and 20 years after his loss in the finals of the second PGA Championship. After its inaugural year, the Championship was changed to a 36-hole format. Playing in December in inclement weather, McLeod of Chevy Chase, Md., shot 75-79 to tie Otto Hackbarth of Cincinnati, with 154 after three days, as one round was rained out. In the play-off, McLeod defeated Hackbarth, 80-82.

INAUGURAL SENIOR PGA CHAMPIONSHIP

Thanks to Bobby Jones and Alfred S. Bourne, the first PGA Seniors' Championship was played at Augusta National Golf Club. Jones hosted the event on the Georgia golf course where the Masters began three years earlier. Bourne, called a "sportsman and friend of the pros," contributed $1,500 for the purchase and endowment of a trophy that bears his name. The winner was Jock Hutchison of Golf, Ill., with a three-round total of 223. George Gordon, from Rumford, R.I., had the second-best total, finishing eight shots back of Hutchison.
