

SCOTT McCARRON (-13)

Q. So you finished tied for second. How do you feel about your --

SCOTT McCARRON: I'll tell you what, Mark O'Meara played a beautiful round of golf today. I mean, he really didn't miss many shots at all. The only one he missed maybe was 18, the second one. Anytime he put himself in any position that was maybe a little bit off, he was right there. I mean, he played a really solid round of golf today.

Would have been very difficult to catch for me. I didn't get off to a very good start at all, but I made a lot of birdies on the back side to try to at least get a run going, but I could never really get close enough to really push him. My hat's off to him, he played beautifully.

Q. When you're in that situation, do you put extra pressure on yourself to try to make birdies or take more chances or --

SCOTT McCARRON: You know, I did. I took a little chance on 11, tried to hit driver and push it up there, ended up costing me in the bunker and made bogey. But I was pushing, I was making birdies. I made six birdies on the back nine. I only made one par on 18, so the ones that I made bogey on, I was pushing a little too hard. But you've got to, I was too far behind just to kind of play safe. I was trying as hard as I could, just didn't quite have it on the front nine, but played better on the back.

Q. So it seemed like you and Kirk were genuinely happy for Mark.

SCOTT McCARRON: Oh, gosh, Mark O'Meara's one of the greatest guys out here, and he's been kind of my big brother ever since I got on the PGA TOUR. We traveled a lot together in Ireland, Scotland, and do a lot of fly fishing together. We've been very good friends and he's been such a mentor to me. So to see him win, he wasn't won for a while, and to play the way he did, I mean, he just dominated this week. It was pretty impressive.

Q. He said that he prepared by going snowmobiling.

SCOTT McCARRON: Yeah, snowmobiling, exactly. He sent me all the videos. We send videos of snowmobiling and I do of wake surfing. He's just, he's a great guy, one of the most well-liked guys out here and we're all very happy for him.
