

Annika Sorenstam

Thoughts on your first PNC Father Son Challenge?

“It’s been a wonderful week overall, with a wonderful ‘Thank you’ to PNC for hosting us and having us here. Thanks to all fans who came out and families, for supporting us. The whole week was just awesome. Birdies will always make things a little sweeter, but unfortunately, scores were secondary today. But, it has been wonderful to be here and that’s what we’ll all take away...having my kids here and playing with my dad. His clubs are for sale now (laughter). I think he needs a break. He practiced so much. He had so much adrenalin yesterday that today was a little slower. We tried, but just didn’t make a lot of putts.”

“It’s just been a great week to come here and play...and in my hometown. We’re just right around the corner, so to have the kids here to see me has been great.”

Q: What happens as the competitor when you get back inside the ropes, even in an event like this?

“You know what’s like and you want to do well. You know the mindset and routine of practicing and getting yardages and throwing up grass. In that way, it’s like getting on a bike. But, the swing is not like getting on a bike. But, I have to give myself a break, because I really don’t play. But, I think coming here and playing with my dad is a lot more relaxing. It’s funny at times....he would say it’s down wind and I would say it’s into the wind, so it is what it is.”