Today – A patchy marine layer cloud deck over southern Los Angeles County and just offshore and could briefly spread up towards the golf course before 9am. Otherwise, sunny skies can be expected today with temperatures warming into the lower to middle 60s before the sea breeze. Light winds this morning will become southwesterly this afternoon at 4-10 mph. A few gusts of 10-15 mph are possible between 1-5pm. Sunrise: 6:39am / Sunset: 5:36pm

Extended Forecast – A marine layer push is once again possible tonight with the potential for it to be more widespread than previous nights. While some fog is also possible, confidence in significant visibility reduction is low. Some marine clouds are also possible Saturday night but the potential is lower. Once any clouds burn off Saturday or Sunday, sunny skies and temperatures in the middle to upper 60s are expected. Light winds during the morning will become southwest to west during the afternoon.
