Extended Forecast – Mostly cloudy skies are expected overnight with low temperatures getting down into the upper 60s. Scattered showers are expected tomorrow morning with a chance for a few afternoon thunderstorms. Rainfall amounts of 0.10 – 0.25" can be expected where precipitation occurs. Isolated morning showers are possible on Sunday ahead of a cold front. This cold front is expected to be located across western Ohio by early Sunday afternoon and will be the focus for the most widespread showers and thunderstorms of the day. The arrival of the front across our area is expected during Sunday evening. Low temperatures are expected to be in the 60s with high temperatures near 80F into early next week.
