Shane Bertsch, 64-64—128 (-14)

- Bertsch, who turned 50 on March 30, made his PGA TOUR Champions debut at The Ally Challenge, finishing T45 in the Tour's first Return to Golf event.
- The former Texas A&M golfer made 194 career starts on the PGA TOUR from 1993 through 2018, posting five top-10 finishes and just over $2.5 million in earnings.
- Bertsch spent the vast majority of his pre-50 career on the Korn Ferry Tour, where he made 325 starts. He won three times during his career on the Korn Ferry Tour, including the 2005 BMW Charity Pro-Am, where he beat two-time Masters champion Bubba Watson by two shots. The 2005 season marked his career-best as he finished eighth on the money list with five top-10 finishes.
- As a junior growing up in Colorado, Bertsch was a top-10 tennis player before setting his sights in golf. At a national junior tournament one year in Denver, Bertsch drew eventual eight-time Grand Slam champion Andre Agassi in the first round, losing 6-0, 6-1.
- So far this season, three of seven events have been won by members of the 2020 rookie class: Brett Quigley (Morocco Champions), Ernie Els (Hoag Classic) and Jim Furyk (The Ally Challenge).

- Bertsch was medalist at the 2019 PGA TOUR Champions National Qualifying Tournament where he gained fully exempt status for the 2020 season.
- The last Q-school graduate playing out of the Q-school category to win was Ken Tanigawa at the 2018 PURE Insurance Championship.

Bernhard Langer, 68-64—132 (-10)

- Langer moved up 14 places on the leaderboard (T16) after carding eight birdies and posting a 7-under par 64 in the second round.
- The 62-year-old became the Tour's fifth-oldest winner when he claimed career victory No. 41 at the Cologuard Classic in March after coming back by four strokes.
- The win was Langer's 14th come-from-behind victory in an individual event on PGA TOUR Champions.
- The largest deficit he has overcome on PGA TOUR Champions is by six at the 2012 3M Championship.
- A five-time Charles Schwab Cup champion, Langer is currently No. 3 in the standings.

- Perry closed out the second round with an eagle on No. 18 to finish the day with a 6-under par 65.
