Extended Forecast – Increasing clouds are expected tonight into Friday, otherwise quiet conditions will continue. A front will begin to approach the area Friday night into Saturday with increasing chances for showers/T-storms. A weakening complex of showers/T-storms will be possible Saturday morning. Given limited instability, the lightning threat may remain low. As the front moves towards the Ohio River Saturday night, another round of showers/T-storms will be possible. This front should clear the area by sunrise Sunday with dry and pleasant conditions expected.
