Today – Hot and humid conditions will be in place today with temperatures approaching 90 degrees this afternoon. There is a very slight chance (10%) for a pop-up shower/T-storm this afternoon, however it appears any development likely takes place to our east. Southwest winds will be in place for much of the day with speeds generally under 10 mph. Sunrise: 6:10am / Sunset: 8:28pm

Extended Forecast – Hot and humid conditions are expected this weekend into early next week. With increasing moisture and instability levels, the potential for showers/T-storms will have to be monitored. Given the lack of upper level forcing on Saturday, any development during the afternoon will be very isolated. Shower/T-storm chances appear higher on Sunday/Monday as a weak front pushes into the area with coverage becoming more scattered in nature. Temperatures should reach the lower 90s each day with southwest winds in place.
