Today – There will be a chance for a few passing ocean showers through mid-morning, with the coverage of these showers forecast to diminish by late morning and into this afternoon. Most showers should last less than 5 minutes should they pass over the course, producing moderate rainfall intensities. East-northeasterly winds will be sustained between 16-22 mph with gusts of 23-26 mph – strongest along the ocean. The temperature will top out in the mid-80s. Expect an overnight low in the mid-70s.

Forecast rainfall through 6pm: Less than 0.10"

Tomorrow – Isolated chances for passing ocean showers are forecast once again through the mid-morning hours on Sunday, with the coverage of these showers forecast to diminish from late morning through the early afternoon. An increase in moisture Sunday afternoon is expected to allow for an area of scattered showers to push off Puerto Rico and towards Punta Cana after 3-4pm. A few of these cell will be capable of producing heavy downpours, but the fast-moving nature of these showers should limit rainfall totals. East-northeasterly winds will remain elevated, sustained between 16-22 mph with gusts of 23-26 mph. The temperature is forecast to reach a high near 85F.

Forecast rainfall: 0.10" – 0.25"
