

Masters Tournament

7 AM Weather Update

Thursday, November 12, 2020

Synopsis: A line of moderate to heavy rain and embedded thunderstorms is slowly drifting east along a cold front that is located 30-40 miles west of Augusta National. Scattered showers are additionally developing out ahead of this line. Rain is likely to move into the Augusta area over the next hour and will continue through 12-1pm with periods of heavy rain expected to occur. Scattered light showers will linger behind the front through 4pm before becoming isolated into the evening. Total rainfall of 1.25-2.50" is expected today. Cloudy skies will linger for much of the overnight into Friday morning before clearing. Cooler and less humid conditions can be expected Friday and Saturday with mostly sunny skies. On Sunday, partly cloudy skies can be expected before a dry cold front moves through the area after sunset.

Today:

9 AM: Heavy rain with embedded storms

Rain chance: 90%

Temp: 74F      RH: 95%

Winds: S 4-8 mph

3 PM: Scattered light showers

Rain chance: 40%

Temp: 78F      RH: 80%

Winds: N 4-8 mph

12 PM: Rain and isolated storms pushing east

Rain chance: 60%

Temp: 76F      RH: 85%

Winds: WNW 4-8 mph

6 PM: Isolated shower

Rain chance: 20%

Temp: 73F      RH: 90%

Winds: NE 4-8 mph

Extended Outlook:

Fri: Patchy fog or drizzle at daybreak. Becoming mostly sunny and less humid.

Low: 66F      High: 79F      Winds: NNW 5-10 mph

Sat: Mostly sunny and cooler.

Low: 54F      High: 70F      Winds: NE shifting E 6-12 mph

Sun: Partly cloudy.

Low: 55F      High: 77F      Winds: SW 7-14 mph

Sunrise - 6:57 AM / Sunset - 5:26 PM