Today: – The easterly wind flow has increased the low-level moisture across the area allowing for scattered showers to develop along the east coast and move inland. Some of these showers may move into the Naples area this afternoon. Otherwise, partly to mostly cloudy skies can be expected with temperatures warming onto the upper 70s this afternoon.

Sunday's Forecast – Mostly cloudy skies during the morning should burn-off and allow partly to mostly sunny skies to return for the afternoon. Temperatures will be warm with highs reaching 80 degrees. Can't rule out an isolated shower developing across inland sections, but Naples should remain dry.
