Today – Patches of fog around the region have the potential to drift into the Muirfield Village area this morning, but any fog should dissipate around 8am. Otherwise expect mixed skies this morning, with some low clouds bringing a slight (10-15%) risk for brief light showers or drizzle. Clouds will break up this afternoon, perhaps allowing for enough instability for a pop-up shower or thunderstorm to develop after 1-2pm – otherwise expect dry conditions under partly cloudy to mostly sunny skies. Light west-southwesterly winds will increase in speed this afternoon, becoming sustained at 8-15 mph. The temperature is forecast to reach a high in the low 80s.

Extended forecast – Dry conditions are anticipated this weekend under mostly sunny to partly cloudy skies. Temperatures will start out in the low 60s each day and are forecast to rise into the middle to upper 80s. Expect southwesterly winds to become breezy Saturday afternoon – sustained at 12-16 mph.
