Tomorrow – Sunny to mostly sunny Sunday morning with light southwesterly winds. An isolated shower may move in from the southwest after 4pm Sunday afternoon as moisture values increase and weak instability builds with the heating of the day. Should an isolated shower occur, the duration would be short-lived and rainfall accumulation would likely hold below 0.10". Lightning potential will be very low (10% probability) should one of these showers develop. Otherwise expect partly cloudy skies to become a mix of sun and clouds in the late afternoon, with temperatures topping out in the upper 80s and southwesterly winds of 8-15 mph.
