Today – Expect cloudy skies this morning with a few patches of light showers or drizzle at times. If clouds can erode slightly this afternoon it may allow for instability to recover and for a few showers and isolated thunderstorms to redevelop after 2pm. Winds are expected to gradually shift from the south-southwest to a westerly direction, sustained at 10-20 mph with gusts of 20-25 mph.

Observed rainfall overnight: 0.35"

Additional forecast rainfall through 8pm: Less than 0.10", locally higher in an isolated afternoon thunderstorm.

Sunrise: 6:11am / Sunset: 7:48pm

Extended forecast – Mostly cloudy with a few patches of drizzle possible Friday morning. Friday afternoon may see a few showers and perhaps an isolated thunderstorm after 2pm. The weekend forecast remains uncertain, as a trough of low pressure to our west will begin to interact with moisture associated Tropical Storm Henri (currently positioned approximately 300 miles southwest of Bermuda). There remains considerable uncertainty in the track and intensity guidance for Henri, and these details will dictate the weekend timing and probabilities for showers and thunderstorms in the NYC metro area. Henri is forecast to track to the northeast and approach Cape Cod late Sunday into early Monday.

Forecast prepared by meteorologist Joe Halvorson.
