Extended Forecast – A weak area of low pressure will produce the chance for scattered showers through the late morning hours on Friday. Drier conditions will return for the afternoon with highs in the 70s. Otherwise, warmer and more humid conditions will overspread the region this weekend setting up a typical summertime pattern. Isolated showers and thunderstorms cannot be ruled out Saturday and Sunday, but most locations will remain rain-free. The chance for scattered afternoon thunderstorms will increase Monday afternoon with highs around 90 degrees.
