Today: – A weak frontal boundary will stall across Central Florida today providing partly cloudy skies across the area. Can't rule out an isolated shower or thunderstorm developing across the interior sections of the state, but the west coast should remain this afternoon. Temperatures will remain warm with highs reaching the mid-80s this afternoon before the sea breeze cool it back into the low 80s late in the day.

Sunday's Forecast – The stalled frontal boundary will lift back to the north allowing hot and humid conditions to build over the state into early next week. Isolated showers or thunderstorms will be possible across the interior sections of the state. Along the coastal sections it will remain dry with partly cloudy skies and highs in the mid to upper 80s.
