Extended forecast – Saturday, a few isolated showers are possible in the morning, but with an approaching system from the southwest, showers/t-storms become likely at times after 1pm. Locally heavy rainfall will be a threat with this activity due to slow movement. Sunday, as increased threat of scattered showers/t-storms will remain in place throughout the day, with the highest chance of t-storms in the afternoon. Winds remain light for the weekend, generally from the south-southeast to east.
