Extended forecast – A weak front will move through Ohio Friday; however the timing of the frontal passage likely limits shower/T-storm coverage near Columbus. Given this, shower/T-storm chances were capped in the 25-35% range. The weekend is likely to feature warm temperatures (mid to upper 80s) and dry conditions. Winds should stay under 15 mph both days. The next front approaches the area on Monday with an increasing risk for showers/T-storms.
