Extended forecast – Dry conditions are likely to continue Friday, with just a 10% chance for a stray passing shower in the afternoon. A low pressure system moving up along the Mid-Atlantic coastline will bring a few passing showers for Saturday morning. Shower chances will increase slightly after 2pm Saturday as a scattered area of rain attempts to move in from the southwest. An isolated weak thunderstorm cannot be ruled out Saturday afternoon. Isolated morning showers will become scattered by noon on Sunday, with a weak afternoon thunderstorm additionally possible. Forecast confidence remains medium for the weekend due to continued uncertainty regarding the track of the low pressure system and its associated precipitation.
