

This week on the PGA TOUR: Travelers Championship at TPC River Highlands

Aon Insight

As one of the shortest par fours on TOUR, the 15th at TPC River Highlands kicks off an exciting closing stretch.

The Aon Insight tells us that missing long when going for the green is not nearly as penal as coming up short. With virtually the entire field going for the green, the 14 percent of players who miss long gain more than a quarter of a stroke on those that miss short.

This strategy has been providing under-the-radar payoffs for years. In 2019, Chez Reavie hit his drives in rounds one and four beyond the green making one birdie and an easy two putt par with the other. Chez went on to win by a comfortable four strokes.

So, when players are on the tee and in-between numbers, the better decision is to go with the longer club.

What is the Aon Risk Reward Challenge?

The Aon Risk Reward Challenge is a season-long competition on the PGA TOUR and LPGA Tour testing the abilities of the world's best players to make thoughtful, strategic decisions on the most challenging holes ("Aon Risk Reward Challenge holes") throughout the year.

At the end of the regular season, the most consistent player across each tour, with the lowest average score under par, on the Aon Risk Reward Challenge holes captures the $1 million prize.

Aon is committed to a diverse workforce and an inclusive culture where everyone can thrive, ensuring delivery of the best innovative solutions for clients. As such, providing equal prize money to both the PGA and LPGA Tours aligns with Aon's core values and brand.

Aon's Risk Reward Challenge Scoring

One hole is selected at each tournament as the designated Aon Risk Reward Challenge hole for the week (hole is strategically challenging in nature).

For every participating event, a player's best two scores on the designated hole counts towards the season-long leaderboard.

The player with lowest average score under par across the regular season wins the Aon Risk Reward Challenge.
