Extended forecast – The core of the coldest air will spread across Evansville tonight. A period of gusty winds (25-30 mph) will be possible during the evening hours, otherwise it will remain dry with temperatures falling into the 40s. Cool but dry conditions with variable cloud cover can be expected this weekend. Wind gusts of 20-25 mph will be possible both days with strongest gusts favoring Saturday. A small upper-level disturbance could bring a few rain showers Sunday night/Monday morning, otherwise dry conditions will persist into early next week.
