Extended forecast – While moisture levels increase this weekend, model guidance has backed off on the potential for showers. Regardless, the forecast will maintain a low shower threat (15-20% chance) each day. Weak instability will be in place on Friday, so while lightning can't be ruled out, chances will be capped at 10%. Somewhat lighter winds are expected on Friday, however winds likely become brisk again Saturday/Sunday. In fact, forecast wind speeds may have to be increased in future updates.
