Today – Mostly sunny skies this morning eventually give way to increased cloud coverage late this afternoon. After about 5/6pm, a weak cold front brings increased rain chances to the Raleigh/Durham area and potentially an isolated thunderstorm as well. Temperatures will be some of the warmest of the week, reaching the mid-upper 80s. East-northeasterly winds may occasionally reach 15 mph in wind-prone areas.

Rainfall: Trace-0.10" on average with locally higher amounts to 0.20" possible (mainly after 5/6pm)
