Since 1926 the Golf Course Superintendents Association of America (GCSAA) has been the top professional association for the men and women who manage golf courses in the United States and worldwide. From its headquarters in Lawrence, Kan., the association provides education, information and representation to 19,000 members in more than 78 countries. GCSAA's mission is to serve its members, advance their profession and improve communities through enjoyment, growth and vitality of the game of golf.

- Arnold Palmer was the first recipient of GCSAA's Old Tom Morris Award in 1983 for a continuing lifetime commitment to the game of golf.

- Quote from Arnold Palmer, whose father, Deacon, and younger brother, Jerry, were both superintendents at Latrobe (Pa.) Country Club:

"The Golf Course Superintendents Association of America and all golf course superintendents are probably the most important entity that we have in golf. ... The conditions and the golf course's beauty, the environment, the wetlands, everything depends on their perseverance and their knowledge and the work they do to maintain the golf courses."

- The quote is on the wall of the multi-purpose room at GCSAA's headquarters in Lawrence, Kan.
