Today – Scattered showers and isolated thunderstorms will be possible as we start play this morning before thunderstorms become more numerous and increase in coverage late morning into the early afternoon. There may be a lull for a few hours before another round of rain and thunderstorms moves through the area late afternoon into the early evening as the cold front approaches from the west. A few storms could be strong with gusty winds and heavy rainfall.

Sunday Forecast – Patchy fog will be possible around daybreak. Otherwise, a weak area of high pressure and drier air will provide partly cloudy to mostly sunny skies for the final round. Temperatures will be warm with highs in the upper 80s. Smoke from the Canadian wildfires will make for hazy conditions during the afternoon hours.
