Things to know

- Four-time major champion Brooks Koepka holds a two-stroke lead over FedExCup leader Jon Rahm after the third round of the Masters Tournament
- Koepka is 3-for-3 with the 54-hole lead/co-lead in major championships (2018 U.S. Open, 2018 PGA Championship, 2019 PGA Championship)
- With a win, Rahm would become the only player with multiple major titles since the start of 2021 and the third player from Spain to win multiple men’s majors
- With a win, Viktor Hovland would become the first player from Norway to win a men’s major
- Sam Bennett ties the second-lowest 54-hole score by an amateur in tournament history (4-under 212) and at T7 is the first amateur in the top 10 after three rounds of the Masters since Deane Beman in 1964
- 82-time PGA TOUR winner and five-time Masters champion Tiger Woods withdraws before the resumption of the third round Sunday due to injury

* = largest 54-hole deficit overcome by a winner on TOUR this season

- Holds the lead in the FedExCup standings with three victories this season (Scheffler entered the 2022 Masters as the FedExCup leader with three victories on the season and went on to win)
- Four top-10s at the Masters, tied with Rory McIlroy and Cameron Smith for most of any player since Rahm made his tournament debut in 2017
- No player has won multiple majors since the start of 2021 (Rahm won the 2021 U.S. Open)
- Two players from Spain have won multiple majors: Seve Ballesteros (5) and José María Olazábal (2); Ballesteros, who passed away in 2011, was born April 9, 1957 (66 years ago Sunday)
- 17 players have won the Masters and the U.S. Open; two have done so in the last 10 years: Jordan Spieth (2015 Masters, 2015 U.S. Open) and Dustin Johnson (2016 U.S. Open, 2020 Masters)
- Would return to No. 1 in the Official World Golf Ranking with a victory if Scheffler (currently T15) finishes worse than solo-fourth

Viktor Hovland (3rd/-8)

- Made five consecutive birdies in the third round (Nos. 11-15), tying the longest birdie streak of his PGA TOUR career (R2/2021 WGC-Workday Championship)
- No player from Norway has ever won a men's major championship
- Held a share of the 54-hole lead at the 2022 Open Championship and went on to finish T4, his only career top-10 in a major
- Four top-10s in 10 prior starts this season, highlighted by a T3 at THE PLAYERS Championship
- Three-time PGA TOUR winner (2020 Puerto Rico Open, 2020 World Wide Technology Championship, 2021 World Wide Technology Championship)

Sam Bennett (T7/-4)

- Ties the second-lowest 54-hole score by an amateur at the Masters Tournament (lowest: 210, Ken Venturi, 1956; other 212: Charles Coe, 1961)
- First amateur inside the top 10 after 54 holes at the Masters since Deane Beman in 1964 (T8)
- First amateur inside the top 10 after 54 holes in a major since Paul Dunne (1st) and Jordan Niebrugge (T6) at the 2015 Open Championship
- First amateur inside the top 10 after 54 holes in a TOUR event since Michael Thorbjornsen at the 2022 Travelers Championship (T7)
- Making fourth career PGA TOUR start (best result to date: T49, 2022 U.S. Open)
- No. 6 in PGA TOUR University Ranking (senior at Texas A&M)

Miscellaneous notes

- World No. 4 Patrick Cantlay (4th/-6) is the highest-ranked player in the Official World Golf Ranking that has not won a major
- With a win, 2021 Masters winner Hideki Matsuyama (T5/-5) would be the first player to win two Masters titles in three seasons since Bubba Watson in 2012 and 2014
- Tiger Woods withdraws before the resumption of the third round Sunday; this marks Woods' 12th career WD in a PGA TOUR event and third in a major (others: 1995 U.S. Open, 2022 PGA Championship)
