Extended forecast – Widespread frost will be likely Thursday morning before temperatures begin to moderate during the afternoon with highs reaching the mid-60s. Much warmer temperatures can be expected Friday ahead of an approaching cold front and upper-level low pressure system that will move through the region Saturday. This will bring the chance for showers Friday night through the day on Saturday before shifting east late in the day. Sunday will be mild with partly cloudy skies with highs in the 70s. A weak cold front will move through the region Sunday evening with a slight chance of showers.
