Today – Clouds will increase this morning with a period of rain showers possible between 11am-2pm. Additional showers/T-storms likely develop over the Appalachians this afternoon. This activity should push towards Charlotte between 5-9pm in a weakening state. The threat for lightning is conditional, given very marginal instability values, but a low chance (10-20%) will be included in the forecast after 5pm. Southwest winds will increase, with gusts of 15-20 mph possible during the afternoon. A high in the lower 80s is expected. Most Likely Rainfall: Less than 0.15".
