Sunday Forecast – Cloudy skies can be expected to start the day but the chance for scattered showers will increase as we go through the morning as a cold front approaches from the west. Showers will continue to increase through the afternoon and will likely become a steady rain by late afternoon into the early evening hours as a low-pressure system lifts northward toward Southern Ontario. Rain will continue Sunday night into Monday morning before shifting east. Rainfall through 6pm: 0.10-0.20"/3-5mm. Rainfall Sunday night through Monday morning 0.40-0.50"/10-15mm
