Today – Mostly sunny this morning becoming partly cloudy in the afternoon. There is a slim threat (10% probability) for a brief pop-up shower or weak thunderstorm this afternoon, otherwise anticipate that hot and dry conditions will persist. The heat index is forecast to hit 100°F around 12pm and is likely to reach a peak value near 104°F or 105°F this afternoon. Winds will be northwesterly at 7-13 mph.

Heat index ≥ 100°F timing: 12-6pm. Forecast peak heat index: 105°F. Sunrise: 7:06am / Sunset: 8:12pm

Extended forecast – Sunny skies Saturday morning will become partly cloudy in the afternoon. Anticipate that an isolated coverage (10-20% probability) of showers and short-lived thunderstorms will pop-up after 3pm Saturday. Weakening of a high pressure ridge and an increase in moisture will allow for a scattered coverage of thunderstorms to develop across the Atlanta metro area Sunday afternoon. The heat index will climb into the 104°F to 105°F range on Saturday and should reach a max of 102°F or 103°F on Sunday.
