Today – Areas of mist or drizzle should end quickly this morning. Otherwise, cloudy skies can be expected through midday/early afternoon before we see breaks in the overcast allowing for some peeks of sunshine. Temperatures will hold in the low 70s this morning before warming into the upper 70s to low 80s during afternoon. A light NNE breeze will develop and help pull some drier air into the region later this afternoon allowing skies to become partly cloudy this evening.

Extended forecast – Patchy fog will be possible before 8am Saturday morning. Otherwise, drier air will provide partly cloudy skies with highs reaching the upper 80s during the afternoon. Southwind wind flow will push more humid air northward across the region as we go through the day Sunday. Partly cloudy skies can be expected with highs in the upper 80s. Scattered showers and thunderstorms will likely develop across the mountains. An isolated shower or thunderstorms may move east into the area during the evening hours, but most locations will remain dry.
