Extended Forecast – A weak cold front will move across the region overnight resulting in increasing clouds and a shift in winds from the SW to the NE. Winds will increase through the night behind the front reaching 7-14 mph with gusts to 20 mph by morning. Some very isolated showers can't be ruled out, but majority of the region will remain dry. Clearing will then occur tomorrow with partly cloudy to mostly sunny skies expected on Sunday and Monday. Low temps will be in the mid-60s with highs in the lower to mid-80s. The strongest winds will occur tomorrow NE around 10-15 mph with gusts around 25 mph.
