

SUNDAY, JULY 2nd, 2023 - 5 AM U.S. Senior Open Weather Forecast

Winds have done their thing overnight, shifting over to include an easterly component with intensity holding steady from where we left things on Saturday. Dewpoints have struggled to make their way back into the 60s allowing temps to fall back into the low 60s to start the morning providing crisp, cool start for preparations for the final round. Winds will continue to hold on out of the ENE/NE through the morning hours before then becoming more northerly as play finishes up this afternoon with speeds increasing only slightly from this morning averaging 7 - 9 mph gusting up to 15 mph. Cloud cover for Sunday will be less prominent than Saturday with non - threatening cumulus pairing up with lots of sunshine to allow temperatures to warm up quickly this morning, climbing into the 70s just after 8 AM, into the 80s just after the final group starts their round before topping out once again in the mid 80s this afternoon. With no threat from the surface low off to our south partnering up with dewpoints remaining in the 50s for the entirety of the final round, Sunday is looking to provide yet another ideal day for Championship golf.
