Extended forecast – Significant heat will begin to build across Oklahoma this weekend as temperatures climb well into the 90s to near 100 degrees. Lower humidity levels will keep peak heat indices near 100 degrees. While precipitation chances the remainder of the week are limited, a weak front will be positioned near the area Sunday. Given the proximity of the front, its worth mentioning a low (15% chance) for showers/T-storms during the day.
