Extended forecast – Saturday, trending mostly cloudy with much of the day remaining dry. However, there remains a slight chance of a few showers developing, mainly in the afternoon. T-storms are not expected during the day on Saturday, but shower and t-storm chances increase for Saturday night. South-southeast breezes come up through the day Saturday, with gusts to 15-20 mph in the afternoon. Sunday, scattered shower/t-storm chances remain as a trough of low pressure approaches the area, with the highest t-storm risks being late afternoon/evening. A few storms may be heavy. South-southeast breezes come up a bit further for Sunday, with gusts to 20-25 mph in the afternoon.
