Extended forecast – Increasing northeast flow will develop Friday and this should lead to an uptick in coastal showers. In fact, an organized band of showers could develop near Ponte Vedra Friday afternoon/evening. The shower potential will persist through the upcoming weekend, but activity will be less persistent and organized. Brisk northeast to east winds are expected Friday/Saturday with gusts of 25-30 mph. The strongest and most persistent winds will favor Sawgrass CC. Winds should weaken a bit on Sunday.
