Extended Forecast – Plentiful sunshine combined with relatively cool temperatures with low humidity will be in place this weekend as high pressure builds in behind the cold front. Overnight lows will be in the 50s with daytime highs in the 70s increasing into the lower 80s by early next week. The strongest winds of the period will occur overnight tonight into tomorrow morning with a decreasing trend of gusts from 25 mph to 15 mph out of the NNW shifting to NNE.
