Extended forecast – Areas of showers/T-storms are expected to move through Calgary this evening with activity coming to an end after midnight. Areas of clouds will remain in place through Saturday morning with some fog also possible. The remainder of the weekend likely features dry conditions although there is enough uncertainty to keep a very low (15% chance) for precipitation Saturday/Sunday. Winds will be light and erratic on Saturday with a more consistent southeast wind on Sunday.

Forecast prepared by meteorologist Kyle Koval.
