Today – Cloudy conditions early this morning as that front is essentially right over us as the first group tees off. Clouds should lessen throughout the morning with skies becoming mostly sunny by the afternoon. Winds pick up this afternoon behind the front as well, with north to northwest winds potentially gusting up to 16-22 mph.

Extended Forecast – Dry the rest of the week. Main change to note is that the winds have continued to trend up a little bit both Friday and Saturday, but especially for Saturday. Wind gusts in the afternoon could now approach the 25-27 mph range out of the east-southeast. No changes with the temps, as those are still on track to ramp up late in the week as well, with highs pushing into the upper 80s to near 90F Fri-Sat.
