Extended forecast – A near carbon copy of today is forecast through the extended weekend with partly cloudy to mostly sunny skies and easterly winds gusting between 20-25mph at times. Very slight chances of marine-based showers remain plausible the next few days with chances sneaking slightly higher Sunday with the approach of increased forcing aloft. Still, isolated weak showers would be the main concern Sunday. Highs each afternoon near 90F.

Forecast prepared by meteorologist Tim Calamari.
