Extended Forecast – Rain chances have trended slightly further east and a touch quicker Saturday afternoon. Could see some showers working in as early as 12-1pm or so. Good news is that the highest lightning threat continues to be off to the west-southwest, but we will have a 10-20% chance for sporadic lightning between about 12-5pm. Not many changes to the Sunday forecast. Shower chances possible in the morning likely after 10-11am, with lightning chances still increasing after 1pm. Storm chances then become slightly more widespread throughout the afternoon. Upwards of 0.30-0.40" possible during the day. Light winds likely Sat-Sun with highs only in the lower 70s.
