Sunday Forecast – Gulf moisture will move northward and make for humid conditions as we go through the day. Combine that with a weak upper-level low-pressure system to the south and scattered showers will be possible during the afternoon into the early evening hours. There may be an isolated thunderstorm, but the higher likelihood will be further south closer to the coast. Showers that do occur, will be capable of producing brief heavy downpours. Rainfall amounts will average 0.10"-0.25"
