Sunday – A large complex of thunderstorms is forecast to track across northern New England Sunday morning. This complex may produce an outflow boundary that reaches Connecticut and could produce a few thunderstorms between 7am-11am. The heat and humidity will build Sunday afternoon with temperatures in the mid 90s and heat indices reaching 102F. West winds will increase and could gust over 20mph at times.

Monday/Tuesday – A heat dome will set up across New England with temperatures over 100 degrees both days. The heat index could reach 106 degrees as humidity levels will be high.
