

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 11, 2025 – 5 AM WEATHER FORECAST

Enjoy just about perfect weather today as dewpoints hang in the 50s and after starting in the 50s, temps will top out near 81 degrees this afternoon. Sunshine may mix with just a handful of fair weather clouds this afternoon and we might see a subtle white tint to our blue skies from still some leftover Canadian wildfire smoke aloft. Southwest to occasionally westerly flow begins lightly, however it will be breezy at times this afternoon with speeds 6-12 mph and some gusts in the high teens. Tonight will be another pleasant evening with just a few high clouds floating by silently. Sunshine through those high clouds Thursday morning will give way to some periods of clouds Thursday afternoon as the humidity tries to gradually return. The winds will be down a notch too leading towards a 20% risk of a shower with the more realistic zone for anything on radar to our north between Erie and Pittsburgh. Temps will be warmer tomorrow as highs reach the upper 80s and we'll be there again on Friday with a better chance of a shower or storm. Look for more clouds this weekend knocking temps down with wet weather appearing more likley.
