Extended forecast – The end of the work week remains dry with mostly sunny conditions. Wind direction will turn north to east Friday and Saturday and remain less than 20mph. Into the weekend, Hurricane Isaias will bring a large swath of moderate rainfall to the area. Cloud cover will begin to build Friday evening, and Saturday is expected to be mostly cloudy. In the early morning Sunday, rainfall will move in and moderate rainfall is expected through early afternoon. Lighter rainfall is then expected through Monday afternoon. A few embedded thunderstorms are possible. Winds will be strongest on Sunday during the heavy rain with wind gusts near 20mph.
