Extended forecast – Mostly sunny and mostly dry conditions will continue this week and weekend. Waves of drier air will continue to move over the area Friday and Saturday, limiting any shower chances. Sunday into Monday, a renewed round of moisture may move back in leading to passing showers. Winds will remain steady this week with light winds near sunrise, picking up in the mid-late morning with easterly wind gusts near 15-20 mph, and then light overnight. Temperatures will be steady this week as well with low 70s overnight and upper 80s each afternoon. The heat index will be near 90F each afternoon.
