Saturday – A few more clouds are expected to settle in across the golf course and may lead to a few brief sprinkles today. Temperatures will be slightly cooler today, with a high temperature just under 90F/32C. The added moisture will make conditions more humid and the heat index will still exceed 90F/32C by 10am. Winds will be increasing throughout the day with peak wind gusts of 20-25mph (32-40km/hr).

Sunday – A weak wave of moisture is expected to pass over Panama on Sunday bringing slight rain chances throughout the day. This will also lead to more cloud cover and higher humidity. Any shower that occurs will be brief and there is no lightning risk. Winds may gust stronger than the rest of the week with 30mph (48km/hr) wind gusts in the afternoon. The heat index will remain above 90F/32C.
